RUSK TELLS SENATORS:

Hanoi Saying No To Peace Parley

Bomb Halts Not Helping

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said today he can offer no present hope that Hanoi is interested in a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam war.

He also balked, despite heavy pressure from Senator J. W. Fulbright, at pledging consultation with Congress prior to a presidential decision on whether to send more U.S. troops to Vietnam.

There have been reports President Johnson is considering sending up to 200,000 additional men. A total of 525,000 now is authorized.

Rusk told the Senate foreign relations committee: "There is room for indignation over the repeated rejection by Hanoi of even the smallest step toward peace."

Rusk was commenting in his second day of testimony before the committee, headed by Fulbright, a critic of the Johnson administration's Vietnam policy.

Rusk told the committee: "I cannot lead you to hope that we see at the present time any clear interest by Hanoi in a peaceful settlement in contrast to their persistent efforts to take 'South Vietnam.'"

He said the North Vietnamese government at Hanoi had rejected, among other approaches, proposals for a mutual de-escalation without formal negotiations.

"We have deliberately held our hand in the bombing of the North" at times in attempts to bring about an easing of the military effort, Rusk said, but he noted no results were forthcoming.

LOOKING AHEAD

The idea, he said, was to expand gradually the area of de-escalation. He called it "peace by infiltration."

Fulbright said the conflict had arrived "at a crucial turning point." He demanded consultation before the president makes a final decision.

"What I want to talk about is the exact precise plans you have on escalation," Fulbright said. He spoke while presiding over the second day of questioning of Rusk by the Senate foreign relations committee, which he heads.

War Gets Vote Test Today

From Reuters-AP

CONCORD, N.H. (CP) — New Hampshire voted today in the first 1968 presidential primary, widely viewed here as a referendum on President Johnson's Vietnam war policy. Voting was expected to be completed in most of the 302 polling stations by 8 p.m. EST (8 p.m. PST).

Main focus was on the Democratic party primary, in which Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota based virtually his entire campaign on opposition to Johnson's handling of the war.

The first trickle of ballots, from the ski country on the White Mountains, sent McCarthy and Republican Richard Nixon off ahead.

JETLINER HIJACKED, FLOWN TO HAVANA

MIAMI (UPI) — A San Francisco-to-Miami jetliner with 59 persons aboard was hijacked early today and forced to fly to Havana.

The federal aviation administration later reported that Cuban officials said the National Airlines DCS, Flight 28, was taking aboard fuel at Havana Airport to return to Miami.

No injuries were reported. The man who hijacked the plane was identified as Lawrence Rhodes, wanted for kidnapping and robbery in West Virginia.

QUAKE TRIGGERS SLIDE, 260 KILLED IN VILLAGE

KINSHASA, The Congo (Reuters) — About 260 persons were killed in a landslide, caused by earth tremors, that swept away the eastern Congolese village of Kazipa, Radio Kinshasa said today.

The Congolese news agency reported the disaster occurred Sunday night near the Kivu provincial capital of Bukavu, more than 1,000 miles east of Kinshasa.

The village was swept away some time during the night, it said.

WARSAW RIOTING

Students Sack Culture Centre

(Times News Services)

WARSAW — The debris of rioting littered Warsaw streets today after students and Polish militia clashed for seven hours Monday in the worst riots since 1957.

In the third outbreak of disorder in four days, thousands of young demonstrators sacked a culture ministry building in central Warsaw Monday night, smashing windows and wielding broken furniture as weapons to battle militia.

The headquarters of the Polish Communist party was off target of the demonstrators who fought running battles with police on downtown streets.

Party workers watched from windows as the students hurled rocks, sticks and bottles at police, ringing the building and shouting "Gestapo!", "Democracy!", "Freedom!" and "Constitution."

Police finally forced the demonstrators—estimated at 10,000—away with tear gas, rubber truncheons and a water cannon. By nightfall, a nervous calm prevailed.

The Polish news agency PAP said the militia seized about 300 persons Monday.

It claimed an identity check revealed that only about 30 of those held were students. The remainder were what the agency described as "hooligan elements, persons without steady employment, and numerous arrivals from localities in the vicinity of Warsaw."

It said 27 militiamen, eight volunteer auxiliary police and about 15 social activists were injured in the clashes.

Similar trouble Friday and Saturday left 53 persons injured.

The unrest began with the government's closing in January of a 19th century classic Polish play about the Czarist oppression of Poland. About 200 students demonstrated then and two later were expelled from Warsaw University.

'Naval Jack' New Flag For Warships

OTTAWA (CP) — A new naval jack has been approved for Canadian warships, the defence department announced today.

The jack, smaller than the national flag, flies from a jackstaff on the bow of a warship. The national flag flies from the ensign staff on the stern.

The new jack is a white flag incorporating Canada's flag in the upper quarter next to the hoist or staff, with the naval crown, fouled anchor and eagles combined in dark blue on the fly.

Gen. Jean V. Allard, chief of the defence staff, will present the first new jack to the fleet in a ceremony on board the aircraft carrier Bonaventure during the annual winter exercises in the Caribbean.

Until 1965, Canadian warships flew the blue ensign as the jack showing the union flag in the upper quarter next to the hoist and the shield of Canada's coat of arms in the fly. Subsequently the Canadian flag was used also as a jack.

The jack is normally flown by ships in harbor during the daytime. It is also flown when a warship is under way and dressed with masthead flags for ceremonial occasions, flying the flag of royalty, or escorting a warship that has royalty on board.

Use of a jack is widespread among navies of the world. When warships and merchant ships looked much alike they flew the same ensign, the jack was flown exclusively by warships.

Three Fishermen Feared Drowned

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Several boats were called in and a land search was organized today for three men feared drowned after they failed to return from a fishing trip on Lower Arrow Lake.

On the trip were Peter Vneakshonoff, 30; Leslie Lampard, 40; and Paul Plotnikoff, 29, all of Castlegar. Their overturned boat was found Monday on the north shore of the lake.

JEERED PACIFIST BECAME HERO IN KHE SANH BATTLE

Open Heart Surgery in Bunker Saves 'Dead' Marine

By JOHN T. WHEELER

KHE SANH (AP) — Jonathan M. Spicer became a marine yet he hated war and refused to kill. He received the jeers of fellow marines, then became a hero. He was counted clinically dead, yet he lives today.

He was clinically dead, field

doctors said, when hit while helping wounded 100 yards from Khe Sanh's main aid station. There, doctors fought to save his life with open heart surgery in a badly lighted, underground bunker.

Pte. Spicer, 19, of Miami, Fla., son of a former Methodist minister who resigned because of ill health, once was an outcast at this base manned by marines in South Vietnam's northwest corner.

Because of his feelings about war and killing he was assigned to the team of medical corpsmen. In that job he became a hero. Repeatedly he shielded fallen men with his own body when enemy fire came in.

His father, William Spicer, now a junior high school teacher, said in Miami that Jonathan was "a gentle boy who even now reads his Bible every day."

"What no one realized was that he was thoroughly unselfish and wouldn't hesitate to put himself in danger," said Lieut. Edward Feldman, a medical officer from Forest Hills, N.Y.

Spicer got hit in a situation he didn't have to be in. Men were having trouble loading wounded onto a medical evacuation helicopter because of shelling.

Spicer saw it but an officer called to him from a bunker: "Get the hell back in here."

Nevertheless, the young private turned and ran to the helicopter. He arrived just as a shell burst among the wounded men and the litter bearers. Spicer was hit in the heart, face and legs.

In the medical bunker, Lieut. John Magilligan of Brooklyn began to work on Spicer.

"He died real fast," said Magilligan. "His heart stopped. So did his breathing."

Gold Buying Zooms Again In Europe

Purchasers Ignore Bank Move

LONDON (CP) — A renewed gold rush built up in Europe's bullion markets today, signalling an apparent failure of international efforts to hold down demand.

Demand in Paris set a high for the year.

Zurich, London and Rome reported heavy sales approaching last week's high level, but still below the crisis rate of November and December following Britain's devaluation of the pound from $2.80 to $2.40 U.S. and $2.60 Canadian.

Paris sales included 10 tons of 2.2-pound ingots, gold coins, and 40 27.5-pound bars. This compared with the 1968 high of eight tons.

London dealers described demand as extremely high. One market source said the turnover today was likely to equal the daily levels of the big scramble for bullion last week.

In an attempt to beat the gold speculators and restore faith in the U.S. dollar, Western central banks Sunday renewed a pledge to go on supporting the price of gold at $35 an ounce.

The move brought a temporary respite early Monday but dealers said demand increased rapidly later in the day. One report said the turnover Monday may have reached 40 to 50 tons—about the same as an average day last week, although considerably less than a big wave of gold-buying Friday.

Demand continued to grow this morning as orders poured into London from many parts of the world, dealers said.

The day's total was believed to have been more than 25 tons. The price at the fixing today was 293 shillings 9½ pence, up three pence. The dollar parity, however, eased ¼ cent to 35.19%.

EBB CONTINUES

A statement Sunday in Basel, Switzerland, by central bankers of seven member countries of the gold pool also failed to restore confidence in paper currencies, which has ebbed since devaluation of the pound in November.

Sterling remained weak in the London foreign exchange market today, with the rate against the U.S. dollar hovering around $2.3964—well below the parity level $2.40.

There was also a notable lack of buyers for forward pounds bought for delivery some time ahead—reflecting continued uncertainty about the world monetary situation.

The scramble for bullion brought lustre back to gold mining stocks on the stock exchange which fell back sharply Monday after the Basel statement.

After opening firm today, many issues showed extensive gains as demand built up.

As the heavy demand for gold continued, London dealers were asking where the private buyers were finding the cash to go on buying, and how much longer

Grits Solve Mini-Crisis On Tax Bill

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A third attempt will be made today by the Liberal minority government to get parliamentary approval of an income tax bill, after its second version of the measure was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

He had ordered the government to withdraw the tax bill on the grounds it too closely resembled the income tax measure defeated by the combined opposition on February 19.

The Speaker said to proceed with the new bill then before the house would force members of Parliament to "take a decision which in part would be inconsistent with a decision taken earlier."

They had already defeated an income tax bill last month. If the house now voted in favor of a similar measure it would in effect be "reversing itself."

Describing it as a "minor setback" Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp moved quickly.

A special session of cabinet was called for the dinner hour Monday night.

Decisions were made to delete the sections of the new bill which were identical to the bill defeated in February and leave only the clauses which differed from the old bill.

The revised version of the bill was introduced at 8 p.m. Monday and received first reading. It came up for second reading today.

The tax provisions of the bill remain intact.

The three per cent surtax on individual income and on corporate income taxes are not altered by the new version of the bill. The stepped up collections of corporation income taxes remains unchanged.

government over the province-wide classroom shortage.

He said there are two reasons why Mr. Peterson should resign: he's taking abuse that really belongs to Premier Bennett who controls the purse-strings and he is overworked as a result of double duty as labor minister.

"Make your choice," said Mr. Macfarlane. "Take one job and do it well."

He also accused the premier of breaking a promise to the people that he would meet school and health needs out of the $150,000,000 provincial surplus.

He said the premier is always threatening elections—"Let the premier go to the people on this issue."

"We know we won't have an election because the people will not stand for this."

SPACE CRISIS

Mr. Macfarlane said the Victoria school space crisis is an example of the government's "callous" attitude to education.

The government's current limit of $15,000 per classroom in allowable new construction is unrealistic because no school can build a decent room for that amount, he said.

Mr. Peterson replied that 40 prebuilt classrooms were built last year for $13,500 average cost and that 100 similar rooms are under way now as a result of refundable tax to corporations earlier than 18 months after the date the payment of the tax was made was dropped from the third version before the Commons. It was identical with the original bill and therefore not acceptable.

TAX BILL

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) appealed to the speaker to make a ruling as to whether the new income tax bill was very similar to the defeated income tax bill.

He warned that if the House passed the bill before it in the afternoon it would be in effect "reversing" the decision taken Feb. 19 when the combined opposition defeated the original bill 84 to 82.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River), Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), G. W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River), Gordon Churchill (P C—Winnipeg South Centre) spoke in support of Mr. Knowles' objection.

Government House leader Allan MacEachen attempted to argue against the points they made. The speaker reserved judgment.

The House proceeded with consideration of the finance department supplementary estimates and the supplementary estimates of the veterans' affairs department.

PENSION BOOST

It passed both sets of estimates. This will enable the veterans to get the 15 per cent increase in their pensions announced last December by Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet. "The increase is retroactive to Jan. 1 this year."

There were gasps of surprise in the House when the speaker returned at 6 p.m. and ruled against the new tax measure. He pointed out four clauses in the bill were a repetition of the bill defeated in February. There are eight clauses in the new bill. He said the new clauses were not objectionable.

Chief opposition financial critic Mr. Lambert told reporters that it was "another example of the government's ineptness." He said the government should have known the rules of the House and should have tried to "abide by them."

Mr. Sharp said "we had our doubts" about the bill's acceptability from the start.

The finance minister said it would have been "quite irregular" for the government to consult the Speaker in advance about the acceptability of its tax bill. This would have endangered the independence of the Speaker's position.

the $15,000 limit policy announced three weeks ago.

"Are they made of cardboard?" asked Mr. Dowling. Mr. Macfarlane suggested the minister should go to the premier and say "either produce the (classroom) money or give the job to someone else."

He added, looking at Mr. Peterson: "I suppose you could either smile or cry, Mr. Minister. I see you're smiling."

"This government hasn't any particular interest in schools or hospitals—it is only when public pressure builds up that they start to move," he added.

"I condemn the minister of education for inaction."

FANCY DANCES

"Let's have no more excuses, no more fancy dances and walking on the water," he told Mr. Peterson.

Mrs. Daily, leading off the attack for the NDP, said the government's "temporary" restrictions on school facilities had taken on a permanent look.

She said swing shifts and the lack of libraries, gymnasiums and activity rooms were symptoms of the "second class" education system the government is creating.

Mr. Peterson replied that libraries are still being approved.

Mrs. Daily also charged the government with failure:

● To get into educational television in a serious way (a $30,000 budget compared with Ontario's $3,000,000).

● To give salary grants for 782 teachers in the province;

● To provide special classes for exceptional children;

● To encourage kindergarten classes.

She also urged that regional colleges be placed on the same province-wide financial basis as universities and called for an independent university grants commission and an adequate formula for university financing and development.

Mr. Peterson said the province has approved $206,000,000 in school construction since 1963 including $89,000,000 in the past year.

Referring to Mr. Macfarlane's complaints that Victoria will be short 28 classrooms in September, he said the elementary school population growth is levelling off here.

LOCAL NEEDS

"I'll leave it until next year to determine if the member for Oak Bay is right or me," he said in reference to predictions of a local space crisis.

He said there are many examples of pre-built or portable classrooms built for less than $15,000. Victoria has 13 such units now authorized, he added.

He admitted there are "some problems" in library services in Victoria but said there has been "tremendous improvement" across the province.

The uproar over procedure reached a peak with Chairman Bruch shouting at Mr. Macfarlane to sit down while the Oak Bay Liberal tried to deny a statement by the education minister.

The chairman charged Mr. Macfarlane with making "a facetious point of order" and refusing to yield the floor to the chair.

A bit later Mr. Capozzi demanded that Mr. Macfarlane withdraw a remark about Mr. Peterson.

Mr. Bruch asked Mr. Macfarlane to withdraw and was ignored.

NOISE LEVEL

As the noise level rose Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) charged the chairman with "making things worse" and claimed it was up to Mr. Peterson to demand the withdrawal and not Mr. Capozzi.

Mr. Peterson resumed the floor to say he wasn't objecting to anything that had been said about him.

Mr. Capozzi interrupted him to repeat his demand.

The chairman resolved the dispute by putting it under study. He announced later no action would be taken but reminded members that they must yield the floor when the chairman asks for it.

Meeting Called On Low-Rent Home Drive

Hopes are high that a community-wide crash program of low-rent housing will be initiated this month in Greater Victoria.

Community Welfare Council spokesman Garth Homer today said all interested groups will be represented at a meeting Thursday, March 28 at 8 p.m. Place of the meeting will be announced.

"Our list has grown," said Mr. Homer.

He said attending the meeting will be provincial, federal and municipal officials as well as representatives from churches, labor, builders, contractors, architects and social agencies for the aged and handicapped.

Mr. Homer said it is hoped to determine what schemes are available and how the task of finding low-rent accommodation can be started, using existing premises, without waiting for government action on new developments.

Saanich Councillor Edith Gunning, who originated the Saanich housing scheme, will take a leading part in organization.

South Vancouver Island Branch, B.C. Association of Social Workers, recently underlined the need for low-rent housing by exposing the deplorable homes available to low income families.

Funeral Set Wednesday For City Man

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Roderick Gordon Murcheson, who died suddenly Saturday night at his home at 2857 Austin. He was 44.

He had been forced three years ago to give up full-time work as a pipefitter with a local firm because of a heart condition.

Mr. Murcheson was well-known and well-liked by members of Local 324 of the plumbers' union, of which he was a member.

Born in Saanich, he was the youngest son of Saanich pioneer Finlay Murcheson. His mother, Mrs. Ethel Murcheson, still lives in the Victoria area.

He is survived by wife Elsie; three sons, Martin, Scott and Roderick; and two daughters, Marie and Linda, all at home.

Also surviving are brothers Finlay and Colin, of Nanaimo, and Angus, of Victoria; sisters Mrs. Kenneth (Rosamund) Hardy, of Victoria, and Mrs. Eric (Jean) Michaelson and Mrs. William (Dorothy) Eddy, both of Sooke; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Services will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at McCall Brothers funeral chapel with Rev. Canon Robert Willis officiating. Interment will be in Colwood Burial Park.

Draft Dodgers Aided

LONDON (Reuters)—A new anti-Vietnam group aimed at helping young Americans dodge the draft has been established here, it was announced Monday night.

RUSK

Fulbright said he took that to mean the committee would not be informed until a decision was reached and then it would merely be informed.

Rusk replied he thought there had been considerable consultation and "there is no mystery about the views of this committee" on Vietnam policy.

HAVE CONSULTATION

But Fulbright insisted that consultation now is "justified . . . I believe we could make a contribution if we were given a chance to do so." He said the war has reached a point when decisions will determine "whether we go either down the road to all-out war or to a negotiated solution."

Fulbright, an Arkansas Democrat who has long been critical of the Johnson administration's Vietnam war policy, asked Rusk at one point: "Do I understand you have no intention of consulting with this committee?"

"I told you the president has not reached his conclusions," Rusk replied. "There is therefore no knowledge of what actions may be required by the Congress."

Fulbright said he understood this to mean "you have no intention of consulting with us prior to reaching that decision." Rusk insisted that "senior members of this committee have been consulted" and the hearings of the last two days have made their views "pretty well apparent."

In other words, Fulbright retorted, "your position is that you already know our views."

"We know a great deal," Rusk said.

SUGGESTS RESOLUTION

Senator Frank J. Lausche (Dem. Ohio) suggested that Fulbright could offer a resolution in the Senate that no additional troops be sent to Vietnam.

But Fulbright said this was impossible "when we've had no indication of what the administration plans; you've got the cart before the horse."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said that any Senate resolution would have no power as to final presidential decisions.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem. Tenn.) said it would be futile to present a resolution either approving or disapproving of the administration's policies. "I doubt if either could pass the Senate," he said.

"What is needed," Gore said, "is the teamwork envisioned by the constitution between the president and the elected representatives of the people."

After listening to the senators talk about the constitutional requirements for the Senate to advise on foreign policy, Rusk said: "The committee would not expect me to dispose of these far reaching constitutional questions in a casual way."

He suggested that the committee consider the alternative courses in Vietnam and added: "We ought to try to find some common point as a basis for discussion of the points of difference."

Rusk said he was opposed to "giving the enemy all the information that can be developed at public hearings."

"Nothing could be more valuable in Hanoi or Moscow," he added.

Fulbright countered that "I'm not interested in the tactics of this war."

will the seven nations in the gold pool—the United States, Britain, Belgium, West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands and Switzerland—would allow the drain on their resources to continue.

British financial experts estimated that hoarders now hold more gold than the combined supply of the United States and the other six of the international gold pool.

British experts estimated that the seven nations hold 60 per cent of the world's supply of gold, or about 20,000 tons. In the last three months, these informants said, private hoarders have increased their supply by about 10 per cent to more than 21,000 tons.

Pressure on gold also continued on the Zurich market, and banking sources there said there was no indication of a letup. Both the U.S. dollar and the pound opened slightly stronger, however.

The pound and the U.S. dollar also improved on the Paris market, the pound up 120 points to 11.7825 francs and the dollar up 37 points to 4.9215 francs.

Rites Wednesday For Well-Known B.C. Logger

Funeral services will be held at McCall's Funeral Chapel Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. for Herbert L. Jorgensen, 1206 Fairfield Road, a well known B.C. logger, who died here Saturday.

Mr. Jorgensen worked for the old Merrill-Ring-Wilson Logging Co. at Rock Bay, the Jones Logging Co. in the Fraser Valley and Canadian Forest Products.

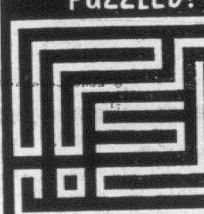

He gave up logging 16 years ago and up to two years ago operated a poultry farm on Kangaroo Road.

Born in Chicago, Ill., Mr. Jorgensen came from an old logging family.

He is survived by the widow, Irma at home; his mother, Mrs. Catherine Gardiner, Vancouver; two brothers, Chauncey of Parksville, and Lawrence of Spokane, Wash.

Interment will be held at Mountain View Cemetery, Vancouver, on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Urbanization Needs Plan, Lee Tells Public Hearing

Urbanization within Central Saanich without planning could result in a chaotic situation, Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee told a public hearing Monday.

The hearing was called to consider a proposed subdivision and land-use control bylaw designed to control housing development in existing urban areas and to preserve the natural amenities of the municipality.

The bylaw prepared by the Capital Region Planning Board has been under study by council for about two months.

The reeve warned that without a land-use plan Central Saanich would become a third-rate municipality.

"It would go downhill and the problems arising as the result of the lack of planning might never be remedied," he said.

About 50 persons attended the meeting in the municipal hall. Among those present to answer questions were George Atamanenko, assistant director of the Capital Region Planning Board, and John Northey, planner.

Mr. Atamanenko pointed out that the bylaw would prevent the spread of small lots outside the three main urban areas—Saanichton, Brentwood and the Keating-Tanner district.

FULL TILT

"These three areas are developing at full tilt," he noted.

Some farmers opposed the bylaw on the grounds that it would prevent them subdividing their land into small lots when it was no longer profitable to farm.

Reeve Lee pointed out that if small lot development was permitted to mushroom anywhere in the municipality, it would result in demands for more services.

Costs to install these services would be reflected in tax bills, he said.

CABINET MINISTER BOWS OUT

Gordon Backs Leftist But Won't Name Man

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Walter Gordon bowed out of the federal cabinet Monday, expressing the hope that the Liberals will choose a "true left-winger" as their new leader.

His departure removes one of the most consistently controversial figures from the cabinet circle.

This is the second time in slightly more than two years that the 62-year-old chartered accountant has resigned but this time he insists it is final.

He does not intend to run again in the next federal election but will go home to Toronto "to get out of all controversy and just lead a civilized life again."

He expects to be named chairman of Canadian Corporate Management, a post which he held in 1966 after he resigned as finance minister following the Liberal minority victory in November, 1965. He served as president of the firm for many years before entering politics.

Liked Marchand

Mr. Gordon said he did not intend to campaign for any leadership candidate and doubted whether he would even signify his preference prior to the April convention.

Several weeks ago he said he thought Manpower Minister Jean Marchand would be the best leader for the party.

Mr. Marchand is not running himself, but will be a significant power behind the campaign of Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Mr. Gordon would say only that his regard for Mr. Marchand would not automatically be transferred to the candidate supported by the manpower minister.

However, Mr. Gordon listed the qualities he would look for in a new leader.

"It is my hope the convention will be won by a true left-wing Liberal with progressive ideas and one who is concerned with the problem of foreign ownership," he said.

Mr. Gordon's withdrawal, preceding as it does Prime Minister Pearson's own retirement, brings to an end a close political partnership which to large degree dictated the personality of the Liberal party during the early days of its return to government in 1963.

Drift to Right

That personality, according to Mr. Gordon, has been changing and he fears the party is drifting back to the small "c" conservative tendencies of the St. Laurent years in the 1950s.

Mr. Gordon hailed the achievement of recent years such as improved employment, stimulation of the economy, more modern labor standards, welfare legislation, and such social issues as divorce.

But things have been changing, he said, "and I hope it will not become conservative and bureaucratic as the party did when it was in office before."

"I have some misgivings that history might repeat itself and I do not want to see two conservative parties in Canada," he added.

The government now is a little more cautious and conservative than it was three years ago, he said.

Inner Group

"There is a greater reluctance to innovate and try new ideas and approaches than I would find congenial as a permanent trend," observed Mr. Gordon.

He also did not believe the present 27-man cabinet was effective and suggested a "two-layer" system would be better.

This would involve an inner cabinet of about seven ministers and twice that number on the outer ring.

The present system results in a lack of communication and a lot of frustration. "It simply breaks down," Mr. Gordon said.

"I haven't been particularly active and that is an experience that I am not used to and don't like," he added.

NAMED chairman of a conciliation board set up by the federal government to investigate a dispute involving 4,125 longshoremen at St. Lawrence River ports is Judge Alan B. Gold of Montreal. He is associate chief district judge of Quebec.

Japan Students Riot

TOKYO (Reuters)—About 500 persons were injured Sunday when extremist student organizations fought a four-hour battle with police at Narita City, west of Tokyo, during a protest over construction of a new international airport there. Arrested were 198 of the 1,200 demonstrators. They claim the airport could have military value and serve U.S. strategic interests in Asia.

EXPECTED BEFORE END OF MONTH

MPs Rush Vets' Pension Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave unanimous approval Monday to the first step toward payment of a 15-per-cent increase in veterans' pensions retroactive to Jan. 1.

Approved was a resolution covering about $8,000,000 in supplementary spending estimates of the veterans' affairs department. All but some $200,000 of the amount if for the pension increase.

Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet said he will study a proposal that a separate bill covering only his department's expenditures be brought forward quickly.

There was all-party approval of the pension increase, with many MPs urging the government to proceed with the legislation as quickly as possible.

George Chatterton (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) sought assurance the pension increases will go out before the end of March. The minister said he thought this will be possible if parliamentary approval and royal assent to the estimates is obtained quickly.

REFUSED LOANS

Mr. Chatterton was concerned that some veterans are being refused loans under the Veterans' Land Act because their incomes are slightly over a ceiling of $6,000 in the Atlantic provinces and $7,000 in other provinces.

Mr. Teillet said VLA offices are allowed sufficient discretion in interpreting a directive on income ceilings that no veterans will be turned down because of "a few dollars." The restriction, in any event, did not concern loans for new houses.

David Groos (L—Victoria) sought improvements in home care for older veterans. Facilities at many veterans' hospitals were inadequate.

Gordon Churchill (Ind. PC—Winnipeg South Centre) led opposition criticism of the amount of time being taken to obtain translation into French of the report on veterans' pensions by a commission headed by Saskatchewan Judge Mervyn Wood.

Mr. Churchill said the report was ready last fall but Mr. Teillet has not expedited its translation.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) said the minister was seeking "refuge in bilingualism."

Union Jack Falls On Poor Mauritius

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP)—The Union Jack came down on the British island of Mauritius today and another small nation was born, free but poor and rent by feuds.

British Housing Minister Anthony Greenwood stood in for Princess Alexandra as the royal representative at the last minute because of the threat of violence between Moslems, who support independence, and Creoles opposed to it.

Mauritius, the Indian Ocean island where the flightless dodo bird became extinct 250 years ago, is "too poor and too small for full independence," says Opposition Leader Gaetan Duval, political leader of the Creole mulattoes.

Few Creoles saluted the new flag or paid much attention to the 31-gun salute. Duval estimates unemployment on the island at 20 to 25 per cent in a population of nearly 800,000 squeezed into just 720 square miles. The island's economy is entirely dependent on the sugar crop. Each year about 2,500 of its citizens emigrate to Australia.

A British Army spokesman said five unoccupied houses were burned today in various parts of Port Louis. About 250 dwellings have been destroyed by fire since violence broke out in January. That brought in a contingent of British troops, of which 300 remain. At least 30 persons have died in feuding since January and scores are missing.

Per Ardua ...

THE FEDERAL TAX LEGISLATION to raise nearly $400 millions in revenue to fight inflation and help to stabilize the Canadian dollar fortunately survived yesterday's challenge in Parliament. The bill, having been amended to delete four minor clauses dealing mainly with procedure, was quickly given first reading after Mr. Speaker Lamoureaux had ruled the original version infringed the rule that legislation, having been defeated, cannot again be introduced at the same session. Ironically, the offending clauses had been cited in some quarters as giving the bill more acceptability to the opposition, since they had not earlier been attacked. But they proved to be unacceptable to the Speaker when challenged and the whole bill for a time appeared to be endangered.

Mr. Sharp excused the incident on the grounds that the legality of the clauses could not be known definitely until submitted to the House and ruled on by the Speaker. But in view of the importance of getting the legislation passed at the earliest possible moment, he gambled—and lost—on a very shaky point. The incident adds one more fumble to the series which has dogged the efforts of the government to straighten out the country's financial affairs.

But despite these false starts it cannot be overlooked that Mr. Stanfield is playing a reckless political game of his own choice. Having defeated the government on the original revenue bill, he and his Tory forces continued to vote against first reading of the revised measure, with the evident intention not only of destroying the government's revenue legislation but also of ousting the administration and precipitating an immediate election. Under the circumstances, that is playing hard politics—and at the expense of the country rather than of his political opponents.

The nation must respond immediately and decisively to the crisis facing the dollar. A number of allies, including the United States, Germany and Italy, have quickly come to the rescue of the Canadian dollar. Ottawa has mobilized international credits, obtained exemptions from United States investment and import regulations, and otherwise build a defence against the heavy international pressures being exerted to force devaluation of our currency. But the key factor in all these measures—and one expected by the countries which have offered their aid—is that Canada move quickly to reduce its deficit position through added taxation and savings in operations.

Knowing the situation and the consequences of failure, Mr. Stanfield has still sought political victory by trying to defeat the government and force it to the polls in the midst of a serious crisis which involves not only our internal but our external affairs. The delay that would be caused in Canada's financial rehabilitative efforts by an election campaign at this time could well be disastrous, and it would certainly cause foreign financial supporters to have second thoughts about our national competence to stabilize our position. It is at this crucial moment that Mr. Stanfield chooses to try to drive home the dagger. It is fair to ask whether, at this first major test of his basic political judgment he is showing the qualities of statesmanship necessary in a potential contender for the prime ministership.

The Gold Market

THE MEETING OF THE BANK for International Settlements at Basle, Switzerland, Sunday did not guarantee total commitment of the central banks of major Western countries to the defence of the United States dollar. But the terse communiqué released after the meeting—normally the bankers issue no comment on their deliberations—at least indicated strong support for the dollar well into the future, as well as concurrence in the American decision to keep the price of gold unchanged at $35 (U.S.) an ounce.

Thus the speculators in gold have been frustrated in their hopes for any quick profit by the statement that "the central banks contributing to the London gold pool reaffirm their determination to continue their support ... based on the fixed price ...". The pledge appears to commit the seven countries taking part—Belgium, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and Britain—to make at least part of their gold reserves available for defence of the dollar. France, although it has a seat on the International Bank's board of directors, has withdrawn from the London gold pool. Other countries, not board members, which will be involved are the United States, Canada, Austria and Japan.

While the total amount of gold reserves involved is about $25 billion—sufficient to meet any speculators' demands for some time—the actual commitment decided on last Sunday is a close secret. And the underlying question, whether the United States can make progress with its balance of payments problem, remains the key to long-term stability. The central banks are holding together and attempting to keep the world's money markets on a "business as usual" basis, although not entirely successfully, judging from yesterday's continuing heavy demand for gold, and the lack of selling by private sources. Sales of gold by speculators would be looked on as a strong sign that the crisis was coming to an end.

Too Many Eskimo Babies Die

THE ATTENTION OF PARLIAMENT was directed last week to the shocking vital statistics covering Eskimos in the country's far north. They are people who residents of the Northwest Territories fear will suffer severely through curtailments in the Canadian budget.

Mr. W. G. Dinsdale, Conservative member for Brandon-Souris and a former minister of northern affairs, says: "... the infant mortality rate is astronomically high, being four times the rate in other parts of Canada. It is even greater than the rate in some of the so-called underdeveloped countries of the world. The anticipated life span of our Eskimo population is 20.9 years compared with the average life span of 35 years in countries like India."

Mrs. Margaret Rideout, parliamentary secretary to the minister of national health and welfare, qualified those figures, indicated an improvement in health services in the northern region during the last 10 years and explained the government's hopes of holding the line on costs after the 14 per cent increase in expenditure in the current year.

But even though her figures showed improvement, they were still less than desirable. In 1956 the infant mortality rate for Eskimos was 240 per 1,000 live births. By 1966 it had fallen to 100. For all groups the infant mortality rate in 1956 was 140 and 10 years later had dropped to 80. In common humanity, there is a need for much greater improvement.

"... I can't lift it ..."

A Two-Front Battle for Mr. Johnson

By STAN McDOWELL

RENE Levesque deserves some of the credit for Premier Daniel Johnson's strategic retreat, during the weekend, from confrontation with Ottawa over the Gabon affair. Thanks to the increased impetus and plausibility Mr. Levesque has given the Quebec independence movement, the Johnson government is now obliged to fight on two political fronts at once. The need to resist the Levesque attack is noticeably weakening Mr. Johnson's ability to press his own attack against the federal government.

McDowell

This is an ironic twist. As recently as last November, at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto, Mr. Johnson was attempting to use the new surge in separatist strength to put pressure on the rest of Canada. Privately he told other premiers he needed their help to stop separatism. The help he wanted was their support in his contest with the federal government over the division of constitutional powers.

But there was a serious flaw in this Johnson strategy. The goals Mr. Johnson has set for Quebec are not really different from those of Mr. Levesque. Between Mr. Johnson's constitutional manifesto, "Egalite ou Independance," and Mr. Levesque's "Option Quebec," the rest of Canada is offered no real choice, hence no real incentive to help Mr. Johnson out.

Similarity of Goals

That leaves the Johnson government alone to cope with the Levesque movement. And since both are in substantial agreement on goals, the conflict between them must turn on the means of getting there.

Mr. Levesque argues that there is no hope of getting the measure of sovereignty Quebec needs without breaking the old association with the rest of Canada and then negotiating a new one between sovereign states.

Never in a hundred years would the rest of the country agree, he insists, to the measure of autonomy now claimed for Quebec by its two main provincial parties. And even if the rest of the country did agree, Mr. Levesque is ready to admit, the federal system itself could not stand the strain.

This is a reliable platform for a political movement that is willing to start as a splinter party, supported only by the minority of voters who favor separatism.

But as long as the majority of the population is non-separatist, it won't work for a party that is in power and hopes to stay there.

So Mr. Johnson maintains the position that Quebec should continue to try to get the powers it wants by negotiating changes in the old association rather than by breaking it.

This enables him to appeal to any ultra-nationalists who do not insist on outright independence. Yet it does not alienate those who oppose Quebec independence or fear its consequences.

A Price to Be Paid

This constitutional posture, politically profitable as it has been up to now, comes at a price. Its plausibility would collapse in the face of any convincing evidence that Mr. Levesque was right in his view that there is no hope of Quebec getting all the powers it wants by negotiations with Ottawa and the other provinces.

Mr. Johnson must keep alive the belief that the negotiation route to sovereignty is passable. And that means he cannot afford to get locked into any inescapable confrontation with the federal government. If Ottawa will not yield, he must, or risk proving Mr. Levesque's point and handing Mr. Levesque a substantial bloc of votes.

This sort of thing has happened before on a smaller scale. The nationalism of the Jean Lesage government contributed to the rise of the separatist Rassemblement Pour l'Independance Nationale. And the RIN drained away enough votes from the Lesage Liberals in 1966 to put the Union Nationale in power. Similarly, in the summer of 1967, it was the RIN, not the UN, that gained thousands of new members as a result of the nationalist fever stirred up by the De Gaulle visit and the bitter anti-federation speeches of members of Mr. Johnson's government.

Mr. Johnson's own political base is barely adequate. And Mr. Levesque is making the independence movement a much more presentable political alternative than it has ever been before. A strategic error on Mr. Johnson's part could give Mr. Levesque the balance of power in the next legislature.

Were it not for this danger Mr. Johnson would have had every interest in facing Ottawa down on the Gabon issue.

The federal and provincial governments are competing for the interest and support of Quebec's population. Forcing the conflict to the point where Ottawa was obliged to break diplomatic relations with France would have given the federal government a major setback in this contest, and it would have given Mr. Johnson a convincing argument for his thesis that the international affairs of French-speaking Quebec should be in provincial hands.

Levesque Advantage

But, in the present political context, it would also have given Mr. Levesque convincing evidence that Mr. Johnson's policy of negotiation would never gain for Quebec the sovereignty that he and Mr. Johnson say Quebec wants.

So Mr. Johnson, faced with Ottawa's suspension of diplomatic relations with Gabon which had treated Quebec as a sovereign state, side-stepped out of direct confrontation.

His speech Friday evening had been billed as a major statement of Quebec's position on international relations.

As it turned out, Mr. Johnson joked his way around the issue taking the position that Ottawa's action was in some way a product of the Liberal leadership contest and that the whole thing could be negotiated after the leadership convention.

But the fact remains that Ottawa's action stands as a precedent that more than wipes out the gains Quebec thought it had made by its reception as a sovereign state at the Gabon conference.

Risky Possibility

There had been plausible reason for Quebec to feel safe in attempting this gesture. Unless the federal government is willing to let Quebec become the national state of French Canada by default, it must seek good relations with the international French-speaking community. It could be convincingly argued here that Ottawa would be paralysed by fear of the consequences of a break with any part of the French-speaking world, particularly if it were a precedent that could ultimately lead to a break with France.

So confident was Quebec that when Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal returned from Gabon he made the challenge to Ottawa explicit by saying that the conference had established an important precedent. Had the precedent passed unchallenged by Ottawa, Quebec and Paris would have seemed safely on their way to a more spectacular repeat performance, this time in France itself, late next month.

The Ottawa action caught Quebec by surprise. All week Mr. Johnson temporized on the issue. And at week's end he took out the fuse. Precedent for precedent, it looked like Ottawa's round.

Letters to the Editor

Greater Appreciation

Apart from the pros and cons of the recent ferry tie-up, one thing is certain—many people are now going to have a greater appreciation of the B.C. ferry system than they possibly had before. Especially if, like myself, they had to travel to and from the Mainland via an up-Island city and another ferry line.—Ray Wormald, 2522 Kilgory.

Supreme Confidence

My congratulations to our worthy premier on his recent exhibitions of supreme confidence in his own powers of leadership.

First he introduces legislation to control the daily activities of the working people of B.C. The average citizen instinctively rebels at being ordered to work or not to work. It has always been the Canadian custom that anyone can withdraw his services at any time he so desires. Having achieved his control of the labor forces, Bennett will next attempt to control employers, and later take over all natural resources, using only good party men as directors.

Then there is the Roberts Bank project. It has always been recognized that Ottawa has control over harbors and navigable waters but our premier has other ideas.

One truth Mr. Bennett seems to forget. He is the paid servant of the taxpayer of B.C., not the master.—The Critic.

There is not a person in the sporting circles in Victoria or in Dawson City to whom the name of Freedman is not known.

The Korean Comparison

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

"WE are stalemated in Vietnam as we were in Korea 15 years ago. We must make the action we took then: seize the initiative to reach a compromise solution—without military victory but also without defeat." Such is the conclusion of a study mission sent to South Vietnam by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Alsop

The report was prepared by Chairman J. William Fulbright's appointee and sympathizer, the leader of this mission, Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania. To judge between President Johnson and his senatorial critics, it is worth looking at a few facts that Sens. Clark, Fulbright and others appear to have forgotten.

To begin with, Clark, Fulbright and the rest have been calling for "negotiations" at almost any price for more than two years now. In Korea, "negotiations" began in the early summer of 1951, when a South Korean-American offensive threatened to break the Chinese-North Korean lines beyond repair.

The opening of talks in Korea all but brought the allied effort to a standstill. The enemy immediately regrouped and reinforced. The fighting then continued, concurrently with the "negotiating," for over two more years. And the toll of American casualties in this period after talks had opened was nearly twice as great as the toll before talks began.

Maximum Closing Effort

To go on with, there is the interesting fact that the greatest single Chinese-North Korean offensive of the entire Korean war was launched about a month before the truce was finally signed. It is standard Communist operating procedure to make a maximum effort at a war's climax, no matter what the cost, in the hope of influencing the shape of the final settlement. This is not irrelevant to the present situation in Vietnam.

Again, "the action we took then," which led to the signature of the Korean truce, was the precise opposite of what Sen. Clark appears to imagine. With President Eisenhower's authority, the late John Foster Dulles dropped the word in New Delhi that if a truce were not signed soon, the United States would be forced to undertake all but unlimited war, quite possibly including the use of nuclear weapons.

As Secretary of State Dulles intended, the word dropped in New Delhi was instantly transmitted to Peking and Pyongyang; and it is generally recognized as having been a main factor in terminating the war. There is a wide difference, one must add, between a conditional resolve to employ nuclear weapons, which Dulles indicated, and a decision to call up the reserves, which is the need in Vietnam today.

Forcing a Compromise

Yet again, after Gen. Eisenhower and Dulles had "seized the initiative" in the manner indicated above, they did indeed get a "compromise solution" in Korea. The Chinese went home, without dragging home with them the tens of thousands of Chinese prisoners of war who did not wish to return to live under beloved Chairman Mao. The North Koreans went home, too. South Korea was left intact.

In sum, aggression was not symbolically punished, but aggression, which had been enormously expensive, also went wholly unrewarded. This is the exact model for the right "compromise solution" in Vietnam.

If the North Vietnamese will keep their 1962 contract to evacuate Laos, and will go home from South Vietnam as well, they can have peace tomorrow morning. South Vietnam and Laos will then be intact, and free, too, to determine their own futures, which should be as hopeful as the South Korean future has proved to be.

There are other things to be said about the senatorial clamor. Sen. Robert Kennedy, for instance, spoke as though there were no North Vietnamese in South Vietnam, and all the destruction there was caused by U.S. forces. In fact, in three-quarters of the country, invading North Vietnamese regulars compose the backbone and, generally, the large majority of the enemy forces. By analogy, the United States would bear the moral blame for destruction caused in Guam by a U.S. effort to repel a Communist Chinese invasion of that island.

Right Thing, Wrong Way

In fairness to the senators, it must be added that they would hardly be talking in this manner if President Johnson were a different sort of national leader and war leader. Unhappily, he has the strange habit of doing the right thing in the wrong way. He went into a big war in a futile manner. To this day, he has never raised a national standard for Americans to rally to.

In the last weeks, as soon as the Tet offensive made it clear the enemy was going for broke, it was also clear that a reserve call-up and perhaps mobilization ought to be ordered. No doubt the president will again do the right thing, albeit belatedly. But the vacuum he leaves by secretive silence is inevitably filled by senatorial talk.

Inner Agony of the Catholic Church In Latin America's Social Revolution

By JOHN M. GOSKHO

(This is the first of two articles by The Washington Post's Latin American correspondent detailing the changes—and resistance to changes—in the Roman Catholic Church which for 400 years has been an important influence in the lives of the majority of Latin Americans.)

LIMA—From the solitude of the Lima jail comes the anguished cry of an imprisoned priest: "Holy Father, the church in Latin America has no charity, it has no faith, there remains only hope. Revitalize it, that faith and charity may return."

In the mountains of Colombia, another young priest, bearer of one of his country's oldest and proudest names, is shot down by government troops as a Communist guerrilla.

The next day, every wall at the University of Bogota is plastered with signs: "Camilo! We shall not weep for you. We shall avenge you."

An American society of Catholic missionaries suddenly reveals that three of its members—two priests and a nun—have been forced to leave Guatemala because of their sympathy for revolutionaries seeking to overthrow the U.S.-backed government there. From their exile in Mexico, the three, all products of middle-class American homes and educations, hurl their defiant reply.

"I am a Communist only if Christ was a Communist," says one of the priests. And the nun, who since has become his wife, adds her refusal to "become a hypocrite hiding behind the easy facade of a woman dedicated to God."

The incidents, all of which took place during the past 2½ years, are not isolated examples of theological extremism. Instead they are dramatic symptoms of changes within the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America that would have been unimaginable a decade ago.

Pressures

Only yesterday, it was customary for outsiders to look on Latin America as a "priest-ridden" society dominated by a church that was among the world's most monolithic and change-resistant institutions. Today, this same church is riven and torn by pressures from within and without that would tear apart the frozen patterns of the last four centuries.

The pressures come not just from rebellious young priests whose zeal for radical change leads them to alliance with the Communists and other extremists. They also are found in the activities of a new generation of Catholic-inspired political and labor leaders, in the theories of brilliant theological sociologists and in the fresh ideas brought to Latin America by missionaries from the United States and Europe.

Severe Trial

Implicit in this so-called "Catholic revolution" is the severest of the many trials that the Latin church has had to face throughout the long history that began in 1493 when eight Spanish priests sailed with Columbus on his second voyage to Hispaniola.

In part, the "revolution" is a response to such outside forces as the Aggravamento (updating) set in motion by the late Pope John XXIII and continued by his successor, Pope Paul VI. Viewed in this respect, the ferment in Latin America is actually a specialized part of the current preoccupation in the Western world with re-examining the temporal significance of religion.

Even more, the "revolution" is a reaction to the sad realities of the Latin American condition—the poverty and backwardness that make the region into a relentlessly ticking time bomb. Those who champion change feel that if an explosion is to be averted, the church's monopoly over Latin religious life must be employed in ways other than the preservation of the status quo.

For this reason, the church's success or failure in making Catholicism relevant to contemporary Latin life must produce tremors that will be felt far beyond the realm of the purely spiritual. Inevitably, it must play an important, perhaps even decisive, role in determining what social, political and economic roads Latin America travels in the years ahead.

Conflict

It is an awareness of this responsibility that underlies the current inner agony of the church. For the clash of tradition and reform involved in Aggravamento has produced open, bitter conflict between men who read the word of God and the decrees of the church differently.

At their most extreme, these clashes can lead an idealistic priest like the brilliant young Colombian scholar, Camilo Torres, to cast aside his cassock and seek martyrdom at the side of the guerrillas. On a less dramatic but more important level, they have fragmented the map of Latin Catholicism into a succession of often antagonistic duchies.

On the one hand, a man like Raul Cardinal Silva Henríquez, outspoken primate of the avant-garde Chilean church, can warn his fellow bishops, "We shall either achieve rapid evolution or confront social catastrophe." From the opposite end of South America comes the stern rejoinder of the man who defrocked Camilo Torres: Luis Cardinal Concha Cordoba, recently retired leader of the conservative Colombian hierarchy. Says he: "It must be borne in mind that the church cannot involve itself in social-economic measures that may fail, for the truth of the church is forever."

Every Nation

Nor do these divisions reveal themselves only in the interplay between the hierarchies of different countries with opposing histories and traditions. Within almost every Latin nation, they can be found merely by traveling from diocese to diocese.

In Brazil, largest of all Latin American countries, the current clash within the church is mirrored in the contrast between two men who share not only a lifetime of service to Catholicism but the same last name. Physically and spiritually, however, they could not be more unrelated.

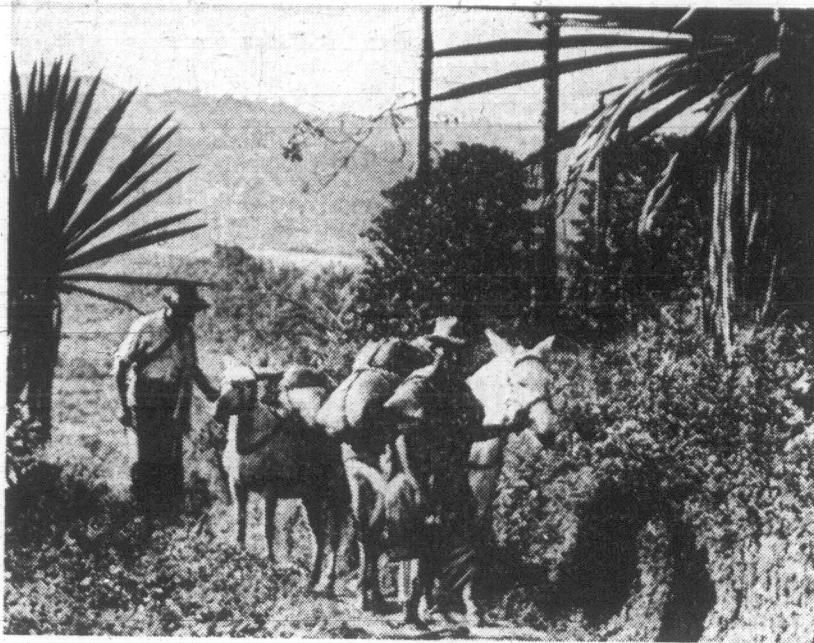

One is Dom Jaime de Barros Camara, cardinal archbishop of Rio de Janeiro and leader of the Brazilian church's conservative wing. A man who views Marxism and anything remotely resembling it as the most dangerous enemies of the faith, Dom Jaime is a fervent partisan of the military-dominated Brazilian government's dogmatic anti-communism.

The other is Dom Helder Pessoa Camara, bishop of Recife and Olinda. He is an advocate of social reform and a foe of the government's big business-oriented policies so zealous in his approach that Pope Paul once greeted him smilingly as "my Communist bishop."

Proper Role

As a result, the Brazilian church has moved far afield of what Dom Jaime and his generation regard as its proper pastoral role. Instead of confining itself to such traditional concerns as administering the sacraments and teaching the catechism, the church has been catapulted squarely into the mainstream of Brazil's social and economic problems.

Among the Brazilian masses—and among the younger generation of Brazilian priests—it is Dom Helder rather than Dom Jaime whose ideas have captured the popular imagination. To them, Dom Helder and his fellow bishops from Brazil's impoverished northeast represent the only real opposition force filling the vacuum left by the government's bans on traditional political activity.

Outside of the main cities poor transportation and communications still hamper development of most Latin American countries. These farmers in Colombia, above, still must depend on winding mountain trails and donkeys to get their coffee crop to market.

What has happened in Brazil is starting to repeat itself elsewhere. In Argentina, a long-submerged liberal faction is fighting to force the hierarchy to re-examine its tacit support of the military dictatorship that holds power there.

Even in Colombia, younger priests and laymen, their thinking joggled by the Camilo Torres incident, are starting to question the reactionary doctrines of older prelates.

Despite the fierce official opposition of the church, well-to-do Colombian Catholics have launched an ambitious birth control program for the masses—one supported by priests who will advise peasant women in the confessional that they should be guided by their consciences rather than any church edict.

Critical Point

Many of the people most directly involved in the church "revolution" see its critical point as something more than a simple struggle between "conservatives" and "progressives." One fast-rising progressive spokesman, the Most Rev. Marcos G. McGrath, youthful bishop of Santiago de Veraguas in Panama, defines the problem this way:

"The simple fact is that the church entered the modern era unequipped for the problems it now faces. It can no longer ignore such problems as the population explosion, the growth of urban slums, the uneven distribution of land. But its weapons for confronting them are the carry-over of simple faith among the masses and a weak hierarchical structure."

"That," he points out, "simply isn't enough. If we are to prevent an erosion of the masses' faith, we must help find solutions to their problems other than the old resorts to paternalism and such conventional charity as a saint's day collection for the poor."

What he means is that the Latin hierarchy is now paying the price for the centuries when it was the most immobile segment of the Roman church. From the days of the friars who carried the cross in the wake of the conquistadores, the Latin American church viewed its mission almost exclusively in the medieval Spanish terms of safeguarding the faith and preparing the souls for eternity.

In the temporal sphere, the church was further inhibited by the anti-clerical attacks launched on it during the liberal-conservative disputes that dominated Latin American history of the 19th and early 20th centuries. In defence against those who would "expel the Jesuits," it retreated into alliances with such ultra-conservative forces as the ruling oligarchies and the armed forces.

Its bishops came largely from an aristocracy whose concern for the worldly needs of the faithful was, at best, casually paternal. Its cadres of parish priests and curates were poorly educated, superstitious peasants. And millions of its nominal adherents mixed their devotion to the doctrines of Rome with the worship of ancient Indian and African deities.

For all these reasons, the Latin American church reached the mid point of the 20th century weighted down with the centuries-old baggage of insularity, complacency and a growing estrangement from the millions of peasants who comprised its flock. Then, about 20 years ago, the first slow, tentative gropings toward change began.

Some churchmen look back to the Second World War, with its unleashing of social and nationalistic forces, as the turning point in church attitudes. Others think the process was hastened by such foreign influences as the post-war concentration on Latin America by missionary groups like the liberal and activist Maryknoll Fathers from the United States.

Also from abroad came a cluster of European clerical scholars who introduced young Latin priests and lay intellectuals to the ideas of such socially involved Catholic philosophers as Jacques Maritain. And finally, to tie all these disparate threads together and give them legitimacy, there came the fresh new winds embodied in the Vatican Council and the social encyclicals of Pope John and Pope Paul.

These are the elements that have coalesced over the past two decades to produce the "Catholic revolution" now seeking new directions in which to take the Latin church. Those engaged in this struggle are so numerous and vocal that it is frequently difficult for observers on the sidelines to sort out accurately who stands where.

'Pot Busts' in Morocco Don't Have Much Effect

gun battles on country roads when suspect cars are ambushed by gendarmes. Loads of Indian hemp have been found in ambulances and coffins.

The campaign against keef so far has had one main result—it has doubled the price of the drug in the last few years. The grower in the Rif gets about four dirhams (80 cents) for a kilogram of leaf; but in Fez it is 30 dirhams, in Casablanca 50 dirhams. And once it gets out of the country the price can increase a hundred-fold.

Concentrated for export into "chira"—a green powder 50 times as strong as the leaf, and a very potent narcotic, easier to disguise—the price rockets.

Making "chira" is a laborious job, and a difficulty is that making it produces a pernicious and persistent stink. Makers are liable to be detected if walking around town unless they take a very hot Turkish bath and change their clothes.

"Chira" is not sold much in Morocco. It is too expensive. But the sickly sweet smell of burning keef can be smelled in every town in the country. Smokers, even squatting down on the steps of police stations, seem never to be bothered by the authorities. Out in the "bled" or countryside, too, the use of keef is very widespread—a cheap way out of misery and poverty among the peasantry.

Are Young Intellectuals Cooling Off on Trudeau?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University. Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University.)

Some of Pierre Elliott Trudeau's university support is beginning to peel off.

Not that this will hurt his leadership chances any more than the eager university response to his announced candidacy had helped him in the first place.

What is the explanation of this rejection of the "Messiah"?

Basically it seems to be because of the contradiction which is fundamental to this man, of his inflexibility in all matters relating to federalism and to justice—his areas of expertise—and his formless flexibility in all other matters.

If it is a question of Quebec or of justice, where does he stand? On the right, sane, self-evident side of the question, and anyone who disagrees is quite out of his mind.

If it is an issue of economics, tax reform, slums, investment, social security or housing policy, where does he stand? Well, these are issues where the approach is more important than the policy.

Times are changing rapidly. The past is no guide. Studies can be misleading. It is far better to face the future with your chin out, your waist in, and your mind empty.

Many of his adherents were badly shaken by his harsh, even brutal stand on the possession of marijuana by young first offenders. There is nothing enlightened or reformist or even 20th century about Mr. Trudeau here. His policy is simple: Fill up the jails!

New Democrat David Orlikow (Winnipeg North) had been after the Justice Minister about statements which had been made by Crown attorneys concerning young marijuana offenders. Mr. Trudeau eventually replied by reading a press report, and stating that this was Government policy.

Here is a press report as read by Mr. Trudeau:

"Department of Justice drug prosecutors in Toronto will henceforth ordinarily suggest jail terms for young persons without criminal records convicted of the possession of marijuana when asked by local judges and magistrates."

Mr. Trudeau proceeded to comment on this:

"The communiqué goes on to say there has been an increase in the use of marijuana. It indicates that judges of the superior courts have recently increased sentences, and that we are guided and inspired by those sentences." That was in the House on Feb. 16.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau says that he is "inspired" by judges who sentence to jail young persons without criminal records who are convicted of possession of marijuana.

While he may be "inspired" by the policy of the iron fist, we have not been able to find a single authority on the rehabilitation and treatment of young offenders who agrees with it. Not one.

Mr. Orlikow has been after Mr. Trudeau on another score. In view of the lack of agreement by the provinces on the charter of human rights, why should Mr. Trudeau not incorporate into his omnibus bill to amend the Criminal Code, a guarantee of the right to counsel in courts and during interrogation?

Mr. Trudeau refuses to do this because there are some circumstances other than those which fall under the Criminal Code, where it would be desirable to have this right to counsel. It is an incredible argument. You deny yourself 95 per cent of what you want because you cannot get the other five per cent.

But again it is the same uncompromising inflexibility in Mr. Trudeau's subjects of expertise.

But let us look at the other side of this man, at his pragmatic, open-minded, "let's fly by the seat of our tight-fitting pants" attitude to the great bulk of Federal Government business.

This facet of Mr. Trudeau, which struck home to many observers at last week's St. Lawrence Hall performance, will hurt him with academics and editorial writers, but probably not with the mass of the public. There it may help him, and his promoters are clearly banking on a feedback from the enthralled public upon the 2,500 delegates.

The image of "not standing for anything" won't hurt him because most Canadians don't stand for anything. What Mr. Trudeau is saying is that you don't have to have an ideology or a fund of accumulated information.

What you need is an open mind. It sounds very fair, very judicious, and very satisfying to people who, themselves have neither an ideology nor an accumulation of information, but who pride themselves on being open-minded.

Mr. Trudeau derided socialism, liberalism, nationalism, and demands for increased social security. And he urged the "freeing" of individuals from the shackles of the law—(unless, presumably they are young persons without records who are caught with marijuana).

The appeal of Trudeau the politician is to anti-politics; of Trudeau the intellectual is to anti-intellectualism, of Trudeau the swinger is to the social disciplinarians who believe jails reform young people.

Under the banner of Trudeau rootless apartment dwellers will become captive, and captives of suburbia will dream they are rootless. Quebec and the House of Commons will know their proper places. It will be great for those who are caught up in the cosmopolitan impulse, to whom politics is a seminar on TV.

We suspect that it will not be so great for those who compose the interest groups which hold society together, the farmers, the businessmen, the organized workers, and all the rest who are interested in policies and not approaches, in legislation and not images, and on major divisive issues, in compromise rather than in revealed truth.

Geneticist May Conduct Cleft Study

A University of Victoria geneticist may make a study this year of the incidence of cleft palates and cleft lips among Vancouver Islanders.

Mr. J. G. Odgers, secretary-treasurer of the Cleft Lip Palate Rehabilitation Society of Vancouver Island, said the object of such a study would be to ascertain to what degree the deformities are heritable.

So far, the society knows of about 100 people with these problems on the Island, and Mr. Odgers is hoping anyone who has not been in contact with the group will write here at 345 Foul Bay Road, Victoria.

She said the scientific evidence so far accumulated was inconclusive as to whether the deformity was inherited or arose from a pre-natal condition.

The geneticist, said Mrs. Odgers, would probably investigate the "family trees" of each of the sufferers and try to establish the probability of parents passing it on to their offspring.

At a recent meeting of the society, Mrs. M. C. Crickmay, speech therapist with the Greater Victoria school district, told members that verbal communication was of great importance.

"... Poorly articulated speech sometimes carries more stigma than facial deformities, unsightly and misplaced teeth or even of personality difficulties or hearing loss," she said.

David Lumsden, a 26-year-old service station mechanic, was the only survivor of the blaze which destroyed his rented 1½-storey home. He was taken to hospital where he is in serious condition with second-degree burns to 30 to 40 per cent of his body.

His wife, Dianne, 24, died en route to hospital despite efforts by Constable Ronald Vollick to revive her by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

The dead children are: Keith 7, Kathleen, 6, David, 5, Kevin, 4, Tracy, 2½, and Sean six weeks.

Police said Mrs. Lumsden may have tried to reach the children upstairs and became trapped by the flames.

Constable Vollick, the first policeman to arrive at the scene, drove the hysterical father to hospital in his cruiser.

The policeman said several motorists passed Lumsden on the street. He said Lumsden kept mumbling: "They wouldn't stop. They wouldn't stop."

"He kept saying 'help me, help me,'" Vollick said. "The skin was peeling off him. His hair was burned off. He was crying that his wife and children were inside."

Three Drivers Plead Guilty To Impairment

Three men pleaded guilty in central court Monday to impaired driving.

Sarwan Singh Sahota of Richmond was fined $300 after police observed his driving was "unsafe" as he drove along Cadboro Bay Road at 10 to 15 miles per hour Sunday afternoon.

The accused was also fined $100 for driving while his licence was suspended. Court was told Sha Sahota's right to obtain a licence was suspended last September until March 11 of this year, (Monday).

Kenneth Langevin, CCGS Camell, was fined $300. Police said they laid the impaired charge after Langevin's motorcycle went out of control on Richmond Sunday afternoon and he and the motorcycle were found behind some bushes.

George Davidson, 1653 Fell St., was fined $300. City police said he was involved in a rear-end collision Saturday afternoon.

Firemen, RCMP To Chase Puck For Charity

Langford volunteer firemen and Colwood RCMP will battle on the ice March 23 to raise money for a burns treatment centre at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The traditional hockey opponents chose the burns unit for their support this year because of the death of 14-year-old David Doyle, a spokesman said Monday.

The boy, who lived at 2780 Millstream Road, died Friday after fighting burns for 87 days in St. Joseph's. He was injured in a fire behind the Langford firehall.

The hockey game will be in Memorial Arena, starting at 7 p.m. It is an annual event between Langford district's firemen and policemen, to support a different charity every year.

PAROLE MAN'S VIEW

Lifted Sentence Urged For Marijuana Puffing

By JOHN MIKA

There is something irrational and tragic with a system that puts a first offender on probation for car stealing but sends him to jail for smoking marijuana, a legislative committee was told Monday.

B. K. Stevenson, regional representative of the National Parole Service, added that a study has shown marijuana convicts in prison, as a group, are distinctly different from other convicts.

He said the marijuana prisoners usually are first offenders, "are not criminally oriented," have more stable backgrounds with more education, have strong support from families and friends and usually obtain very favorable reports from prison officials.

Mr. Stevenson said that marijuana use should not be condoned by society and police should continue to enforce the law but he called for a more flexible system of sentencing, including particularly suspended sentences and probation.

He also urged mounting of a comprehensive educational program aimed at bringing about the same decline in marijuana use as there has been with LSD, although he conceded it would be more difficult with marijuana "because its harmful effects are not so evident."

"Punitive and deterrent sentences will not get at the root causes as to why youths are using marijuana and other drugs," he said in a prepared brief.

"The users will be more careful not to get caught, thus driving many of them away from sources of education and treatment."

He said it is impossible to prove or disprove whether the current sentencing practice of six months for possession is effective.

"But what is evident is that first offenders who might have been placed on probation had they victimized the community stealing or committing some other offence, are being sent to prison."

"The stigma of a prison sentence will remain with them for life and many doors, which otherwise would be open, will be closed to them."

Mr. Stevenson said some youths will be "contaminated" by prison association with hardened criminals or even heroin pushers "and, at the best, such incarceration is a negative experience."

He told the committee that many youngsters who turn to marijuana do so to compensate for feelings of inadequacy in school or social situations.

As the parole service's representative on the Narcotics Addiction Foundation and a member of a metropolitan recreation agency's directors, he said he had had to face the drug problem in a more subjective sense too.

Mr. Stevenson ended on an encouraging note, outlining the recreation agency's efforts to meet a marijuana problem among some of the youths in its sphere without expelling them.

"Our belief is that pot-smoking will become less and less necessary as more and more satisfying group experiences are enjoyed," he said.

"Today's youth cannot accept moralizing or preaching."

"We must find ways and means of communicating with them as they are just as concerned about social problems as we are."

"If we can 'bridge the gap' that exists today, I am sure that our young people will provide many of the answers to these vexing problems for us."

Following Mr. Stevenson's testimony, the committee of MLAs went into closed session to hear the first-person account of a young, unidentified prisoner accompanied by an Oakalla Jail guard.

OIL TANKER OVERLOADED 'BY MISTAKE'

Bennett Raked For School Lag

B.C. Education Second Class Because of Grants-McGeer

By JOHN MIKA

Premier Bennett was blamed directly Monday for a crisis developing in both the province's universities and public schools which will relegate British Columbia youngsters to "a second-class education."

Dr. Pat McGeer (L-Vancouver-Point Grey) contrasted the premier's statement he would advance $25 million "in three minutes" for duplicating a federal superport with the $28 million he has given the universities for construction over the past three years.

Dr. McGeer said the Alberta government, during the past three years, has poured $111.8 million into university construction grants.

"That's four times as much for a population which is only two-thirds our size," he said. "This is what the commotion is about."

Dr. McGeer said the only other province with comparable wealth is Ontario, which has three times the student enrolment of B.C. and four times the population.

"And last year alone, they pumped $185 million into their university system—six times in one year what we did in a whole three-year period."

"So what you're really doing is going second-class," he stormed at the premier.

Dr. McGeer said the situation is a doubled-edged sword because as the B.C. universities become relatively stagnant, it will become increasingly more difficult to attract first-class professors to teach the students.

"So what you're really doing is going second-class," he charged.

"We in the Liberal party say that is not good enough for B.C. and we intend to change it."

Peterson's Resignation Asked

"We're waiting for the minister to stand up and say the same—or resign."

Mr. Peterson made no response but earlier he told the legislature there is no comparison between raising money for a superport and school debentures.

He said the government did not intend to put a provincial guarantee on any superport but he had no doubt the financing would be more easily arranged because investors traditionally prefer industrial projects to school debentures.

Dr. McGeer said the premier's insistence that ratepayers finance community colleges has resulted in "a complete mess" with two regional college presidents resigning in the Interior because the projects have never been able to get off the ground.

"You're not leaving a very enviable record behind you," he said to Mr. Peterson.

"Your policy is three-minute money for Roberts Bank. Our policy is to build more educational institutions around the province."

Dr. McGeer said the government should set up a committee of consultants to draw up guidelines for development of the curriculum and construction of regional colleges so it can give direction in this field.

School Chief Fires Back

Mr. Peterson shot back that this meant the Liberals were advocating centralized control of regional colleges by the department but the government believed they should be "planned, financed and run by the communities."

Dr. McGeer replied the study would be aimed at establishing guidelines only, not to administer the colleges.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said while the government denies a school freeze exists "there is ice-age thinking in regard to education by this government."

"You can drag all you like about the four-room prefabs schools of certain costs but if they're not meeting the needs of the children being taught then they (schools) are failures and you might as well be putting them up in tents," he said.

He said school boards are "pulled back and forth like a yo-yo," installing and dismantling partitions in school assembly rooms and gymnasiums according to the latest freeze-thaw-freeze sequence of the government.

"Everytime you delay a school project, you're contributing to the inequality of opportunity for our children," he said.

"Half a librarian for 500 children— isn't that great? I suppose this reflects our half-time education minister."

Three-Minute Cash for Schools

"Every time you postpone, curtail or drag your feet on education, you are jeopardizing the future of this province. We want some of the 'three-minute money' for education."

Mr. Strachan said his party is "ready to go anytime" the government wished for an election on the school issue.

Mr. Peterson denied that he had claimed perfection for education in the province and said it could never be achieved on earth.

He also denied that departmental prohibition against selected school construction had

DING DONG EVERY DAY?

The Netherlands carillon should ring out every day at noon for 30 seconds or a minute, Waldo Skillings (SC-Victoria) suggested in the legislature Monday.

He said it would be a fitting way to mark not only the hour but the gift to the province of the British Columbia Dutch community. He asked the speaker to take the matter under consideration.

The suggestion was greeted with desk-thumping on both sides of the House.

GAGLARDI TESTS JAW IN HOUSE DEBATE

Highways Minister Gagliardi resumed his seat in the Legislature Monday after a two-week absence which he said cost him two teeth, four-fifths of his lower jaw and seven pounds.

Mr. Gagliardi has been recuperating from an operation in which two teeth, one of them impacted, were removed. A biopsy showed only benign growth, he said.

The minister said he has regained three pounds of the 10 he has lost and is ready for his departmental estimates expected to begin on Thursday or Friday.

Mr. Gagliardi showed no visible effects of his operation and had no difficulty in speaking.

NEW LEGISLATION

Autopsies Planned Without Kin Consent

A bill allowing coroners to authorize post mortem examinations regardless of kin protests was introduced in the legislature Monday by Attorney-General Bonner.

The bill, given first reading, would amend the existing Coroners Act to permit a coroner to authorize a post mortem examination other than for the purpose of inquest in the event of an aircraft accident or if a death occurs after surgery.

"A post mortem examination so authorized may be carried out notwithstanding objection thereto by a person entitled to the custody of the body," it says.

The amendment would also permit a verdict to be returned by five out of the six panelists who serve on coroner's juries.

Under another amendment it would not be necessary, unless the court otherwise orders, to view the body.

"It is not necessary for a jury to view the body upon which an inquest is being held if the coroner directs that the viewing of the body by the jury be dispensed with," it says.

Another bill introduced by William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) would require "that replacement parts for farm machinery sold in British Columbia be stocks in the province for 10 years from the date of sale."

A similar bill introduced by Mr. Hartley last year failed to gain the required three readings necessary to become law.

Smoking Machine Almost Coughs Up

By PAUL MUSGROVE

For a few tension-filled moments Monday it looked as though the B.C. Cancer Society's indestructible smoking machine had developed lung cancer.

But after a hasty consultation and some medical sleight-of-hand, local cancer society representative F. A. Nicholson came up with a cure.

The malfunction turned out to be nothing more than an interruption between the pumping bulb and the "lungs" of the machine used to demonstrate the effect of smoking.

The short-lived crisis was a fitting climax to the Esquimalt Senior Secondary School's assembly on smoking.

Earlier in the program, a student panel questioned Dr. George Evans, deputy metro health officer, and psychologist Richard Boersma.

On the panel were Rosemary Brooks, Jim Armstrong, Torrey Gellot and Debbie McCloy. Master of ceremonies was Lorna-Beth Trail.

Discussing the psychological factors in smoking, Mr. Boersma called it a "stimulant to anxiety."

"It is definitely a learned relationship," he said. "When a person who smokes becomes anxious about anything he immediately has a cigarette."

FEELS ANXIETY

"There is a definite association between the cigarette and the feeling of anxiety."

Dr. Evans said advertising agencies are no longer pushing people into smoking.

"They seem more concerned with getting a larger percentage of the existing market," he said.

While there are many other irritants that could cause cancer, he said, smoking is definitely the prime factor since people expose themselves to it for a greater period of time in larger concentrations.

"And irritating components of smoke are significant in starting lung cancer."

Two films were shown. The first, an animated short called The Drag, concentrated on the "whys" of smoking.

It stressed that group pressure at an early age is a prime factor, and showed the addictive effects of smoking.

The second film, Is Smoking Really Worth It? concentrated on lung cancer statistics.

STARTLING FACTS

One of the more startling facts brought out was that a heavy smoker (two or more packs a day) has about 28 times the chance of lung cancer than a non-smoker.

About 600 students attended the display and at the end the wonderful smoking machine resumed puffing out its warnings.

Impeachment Studied

PANAMA (AP)—The National Assembly began debate Monday night on a report recommending the impeachment of President Marco A. Robles on charges of unconstitutional political activity. The report by an all-opposition, three-man assembly committee charged that Robles, 62, supported a candidate for public office and also charged him with coercion.

Barrett Claims Shouting Championship

By JOHN MIKA

David Barrett (NDP-Coquitlam) slugged it out toe-to-toe with Premier Bennett Monday in the arm-waving, shouting style the Soereds leader has made his trademark—and the challenger won.

Mr. Barrett also neatly speared Attorney-General Robert Bonner and backbencher Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) while disposing of Mr. Bennett.

The flurry began as Mr. Barrett said Education Minister Peterson was "talking in circles" claiming there was no freeze on school construction.

Yet saying that a financial crisis requires a government-set ceiling on the amount a school board can spend for building classrooms.

He said the government's freeze means that 144 classrooms approved by the ratepayers in his riding will not be built this year and as a result 4,231 pupils will be forced into shift classes this fall.

POURED INTO DAMS

"But the responsibility for this crisis is strictly on the shoulders of the premier because he poured millions into dams—one of which was named after him," he said.

"It would have been better if there had been a school to name after him in my riding."

Premier Bennett jumped up waving his finger at Mr. Barrett and shouted "your riding needs a better member."

Mr. Barrett overpowered the premier by shouting back louder and waving his finger more vigorously, challenging the premier to run against him in Coquitlam at the next election.

While the premier spluttered, Attorney-General Bonner tried to rescue him by taunting Mr. Barrett that his riding "needs a new member."

"Well you're welcome to come and try, too, after Cariboo is through with you," shot back Mr. Barrett—a reference to Mr. Bonner's Cariboo byelection squeaker after his defeat in Vancouver-Point Grey at the last general election.

ON HIS FEET

Premier Bennett, who was still on his feet, waved his finger again and began to speak but Mr. Barrett shouted him back into his seat with: "You haven't got the nerve to come and run against me on this school issue."

Mr. Capozzi, in a diversionary heckle obviously aimed at Mr. Barrett, said "that would be known as the battle of the bulge."

But just as quickly, Mr. Barrett turned the parry back with: "You talk that way about the premier and you'll never get to cabinet."

In the embarrassed laughter that followed, Premier Bennett indicated he would withdraw Mr. Peterson's salary vote so the house could adjourn for supper.

But Mr. Barrett protested he wanted to hear what Mr. Peterson had to say about the 144 classrooms that are not being built in his riding.

"Let him answer. I want to hear it. We don't have to adjourn right away," persisted Mr. Barrett.

The premier ignored him, and moved adjournment and retired from the floor of battle.

MACFARLANE TELLS HOUSE:

Victoria Soereds No Help In School Freeze Crisis

The four Greater Victoria Soereds MLAs took a tongue-lashing in the legislature Monday from Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay).

"They should be up on their hind legs screaming and yelling that the government should do something about the school crisis," he said, charging that Victoria will be 28 classrooms short by September.

Mr. Macfarlane then noted that of the four Soereds, three were not in the house—John Tisdalle (SC—Saanic and the Islands), Waldo Skillings (SC—Victoria) and Public Works Minister W. N. Chant (SC—Victoria).

Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) was chairman of the house at the time.

Mr. Macfarlane said the Soereds election slogan of "put a member on the government side of the house and get things done" had been shattered in Victoria.

The four Soereds "can't do anything" about the school construction freeze, he said.

Speaking of government backbenchers generally, he said:

"When you put a member on the government side you either get a silent member with nothing to say or a loudmouth with plenty to say and nobody to listen to him."

He waved a newspaper clipping quoting Mr. Bruch as telling a group of worried Victoria parents to "drop him a note sometime" about the school crisis.

The Oak Bay member said his area had been described as the "riding of the urban rich" but noted it had one school (Willows) with a library in what used to be a closet and a "two by four" classroom in what used to be a principal's office.

He said Victoria West elementary school is a firetrap and that it is disgraceful for a government to tolerate it.

"Cost aside," he said, "it's the children we must consider—if we need schools, we've got to build them."

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Church, Press Share Goal Of Building Better Life

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Are newspapers, magazines, television and radio helping to build a better world?

The question was raised Monday by Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria.

"What is the impact of mass media on the world of today?" the bishop asked. "If it is not inspired by spiritual and moral values, can we expect that our Western civilization, as it is now oriented, can survive?"

Bishop De Roo was speaking at a meeting of Victoria clergymen, newspaper men, TV and radio men called by Canon Grahame Baker, rector of St. John's Anglican Church.

The 44-year-old bishop said churchmen depend to a great extent on newspapers, magazines, TV and radio in putting their ideas across.

BETTER WORLD

"We appreciate the outlet that is offered us by modern news media," he said. "We accept it gladly, but I am wondering what the church can do to help the news media

Pope to Visit Russia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Pope Paul VI will visit the Soviet Union this summer, officially for talks with Russian Orthodox Patriarch Alexei and unofficially for talks with Kremlin leaders, the newspaper Politika says.

DE ROO

perform the specific task to which we are both committed—that of building a better world."

Bishop De Roo said it is the duty of the church to be concerned with vital social issues of the day, such as the plea by mothers on welfare for better subsistence rates.

"It is not the church's role to tell them precisely what to do, but we should be deeply involved in the moral issues raised. And our news media should give the fullest possible information about it to the community."

"The big question is: Does news media serve the status quo? Or does it take the side of the defenceless?"

Canon Baker said it appeared the public generally is more interested in building highways than increasing social subsistence allowances.

HUMANITY FIRST?

"And this raises the question: Which comes first—highways or humans?"

Arthur Stott, associate editor of the Victoria Daily Times, pointed out that the popular press of North America gave tremendous coverage to the ecumenical, inter-church movement, both in Rome and in countries throughout the Western world.

Rev. Walter Donald, deacon at Christ Church Cathedral, said the church has a responsibility to comment on vital social issues.

Bishop Denys Rankin of the Reformed Episcopal Church of Our Lord, said he is happy with the Queen, as head of the British Commonwealth of Nations, joined the head of the Roman Catholic Church in opposing the executions in Rhodesia.

Father Patrick Ratchford of the Roman Catholic Church proposed a further meeting of clergy and men engaged in mass media at Shawnigan Lake next May.

"I believe we can work together in the all-important field of human relations," he said.

United Appeal Target for Fall Up 7 Per Cent

The goal of this year's United Appeal will increase about 7 per cent over the $400,000 raised last fall, it was announced Monday.

The combined Red Feather-Red Cross appeal total has gone up to cover normal increases in agency costs due to inflation; expansions of service to deal with growing population; and the possible addition of a new member agency to the chest's roster of 23.

Last year's total was 11 per cent more than the previous total raised in separate campaigns by the Red Feather and Red Cross organizations.

March is Red Cross month, but there will be no drive this year, since the organization joined the United Appeal.

Contributors are being reminded to hold donations until the united campaign in the fall. General chairman of the appeal this year will be city lawyer Robert Hutchison, assisted by deputy chairman Peter Darling.

Czech Leader Fights Ouster

PRAGUE (AP) — President Antonin Novotny was reported Monday to be putting up a stubborn stand against public pressure that he resign as Czechoslovakia's chief of state.

Informed Communist party sources said there was no firm indication yet whether and when he would yield to the new anti-Stalinist leadership in a shakeup that is also aimed at removing his orthodox supporters.

THINKING SMALL ENDS BIG PROBLEM

Oak Bay may solve a big problem by planting little trees. At least that's the recommendation of municipal engineer Geoffrey White, whose department spends considerable time clearing clogged sewers of tree roots.

Mr. White suggested to council's B committee Monday night that dwarf trees, especially the evergreen type, would not grow large roots.

A perennial problem in Oak Bay is the number of sewer connections either broken or plugged by tree roots growing rampant.

For the municipality's annual spring planting of treeless streets and boulevards, he told the committee that juniper and other ornamental shrubs would be their best bet.

These trees "do not produce roots that are detrimental to underground pipes," Mr. White said.

The committee approved the suggestion and agreed to plant the smaller trees on Swanson Place, Kelsey Place, Rattenbury Place and Pelly Place.

Oak Bay Beaches Get Pollution Test

Oak Bay B committee Monday night directed municipal engineer Geoffrey White to study surface pollution on municipal beaches.

The study was prompted by a report from the advisory planning committee that Oak Bay Marina and adjacent beaches are becoming polluted.

The report also complained of glass, oil and logs on the beaches.

Mr. White's task will be to check into pollutants on the surface waters — specifically bottles, cans and other articles jettisoned from boats.

Coun. Douglas Watts said he had checked the marina area and found a number of plastic detergent bottles and cans floating.

He also saw some bark scum on the beaches, "presumably drifted up from log booms that have gone by."

No date was set for Mr. White to report his findings. Regular samplings of the beach waters are taken each year to determine whether they are safe for swimming.

Police Release Groom In Time For Wedding

A New York man was fined $250 in central court Monday after he pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

Court was told John Krischer, 30, was attempting to pass vehicles on Douglas St. Saturday afternoon by going around them on the right hand shoulder.

Saanich police said Krischer was arrested at the time, but released "because he had a 7 p.m. appointment to be married."

EIGHTH OFFENCE

Half-Year Jail Term For Lacking Licence

A man was sentenced in central court Monday to six months in jail for his seventh and eighth convictions in 10 years for driving while his licence was suspended.

Stanley Rife, 828 Courtney, was sentenced to two months for driving Jan. 3 and a further four months for driving Jan. 4.

The second charge arose out of police investigation of a rear-end collision on Superior St. Rife was sentenced to 14 days for leaving the scene of the accident and seven days for careless driving.

He was also sentenced to 14 days for common assault Jan. 4. Police testified he had assaulted his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Smith.

Rife pleaded guilty to all the charges. Magistrate Ostler said all terms except the two for driving while suspended will be served concurrently.

A 19-year-old from Inuvik was sentenced to nine months definite and six months indefinite for car theft.

Colin Gordon pleaded guilty. Police said he took the car early Sunday morning and was apprehended after a minor accident on Douglas St. at 3 a.m.

Court was told the accused was on a one-year suspended sentence for a similar offence last November.

Gordon said he is one of a number of Eskimos in Victoria for a boat-building course.

Two youths arrested by Saanich police Saturday morning after a high speed chase were fined $75 each for dangerous driving.

Robert Lim, 19, 217 Crease, and Donald James Ryan, 20, of 710 Snowdrop, pleaded guilty.

Const. Dennis Lush testified he was parked off the Patricia Bay Highway near Beaver Lake about 5:45 a.m. when he heard two cars approaching at high speed.

He said the accused went by him at speeds over 70 mph and travelling about 50 yards apart, going south.

Const. Lush gave chase and at 70 mph was falling behind the two cars, he said.

The two turned on to Glanford after travelling through a 40 mph zone without slowing. They were finally brought to a skidding halt by a second police cruiser that had headed them off at Tait.

The Ryan car left a skid mark of 150 feet and turned around in the road before coming to stop, Const. Lush said.

Fined for careless driving were:

Lloyd Cook, 1024 McGregor, involved in rear-end collision on Douglas near Discovery Jan. 31, $35; Dorothy Ashmore, 1758 Armstrong, struck pole on south side of Fort near Morrison Feb. 1, $40; Larry Ball, 639 Constance, car spun out of control at Begbie and Pembroke, Jan. 31, $35.

Firm Develops Soil Conditioner

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Fir coats for lawns—excusing the bad pun—could help a newly established Victoria industry reduce the winter-kill rate in Western Canada's heavy frost zones.

A development of organic gardening, the natural manure-mulch being prepared by Seaford Industries Ltd. relies heavily on shredded fir bark residue from the south Vancouver Island forest industry.

It also uses kelp, one of the most prolific seaweeds, always available for the harvesting in nearby waters.

Ground up together in suitable proportions, the mixture has been found to act in at least a dual capacity, conditioning the soil and supplying organic nutrients.

Manager Doug Broadbent hopes it will find wide use on the prairies, especially for golf courses. A special golf course mix is being developed, utilizing a portion of Alginate, another local commodity, from Sidney Seaweed Products.

Mr. Broadbent said it had been found that the organic constituents produce a harder growth in plants, making them more resistant to frost and drought.

Mixing bark with kelp is not a new idea, but when this was done previously the bark used was generally saturated in sea water and this was less acceptable than bark from trees that were boomed in fresh water.

The company, which began its experiments when located in Ladysmith, started using bark from sawmills in that seaside district. Later, bark was brought from Yubou, where logs are stored only in fresh water of Lake Cowichan and Mesachie Lake.

Now that the firm has moved to Victoria it trucks its bark from somewhat farther, and still brings supplies from Yubou.

Grinding and bagging operations are done in a large shed at John and Pleasant, across the street from historic Point Ellice House. The firm's office is downtown at 605 Courtney.

So far production is geared to demand from the mainland, mostly the Vancouver area. Output is available in commercial and domestic quantities.

With today's trend toward corporate mergers, amalgamations, take-overs, subsidiaries, conglomeration and monopolization it should not be too surprising that Famous Players Canadian Corp. does a lot more than present movies.

But it may be news to the average movie fan that the company with the familiar maple leaf emblem is 51 per cent owned by Paramount Pictures Corp., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of Gulf and Western Industries Inc., both based in the U.S.

Furthermore, Famous Players is deeply involved in other communications industries, namely community TV antenna, broadcasting and piped music companies.

Stock is held in 21 community antenna companies, serving an estimated 175,000 subscribers, in which Famous Players has an interest estimated at $21.2 million.

The company has holdings in six TV and two radio broadcasting stations, the interest valued at about $10.3 million, and a 50 per cent interest in Associated Broadcasting Corp., operating under exclusive franchise for Ontario from Muzak Corp., New York, for the next 14 years. The holding is worth about $1.2 million to Famous Players.

Subject to government approval, Famous Players seeks to form a new public company to be called Famous Communications Ltd., which will incorporate the cable and broadcasting interests.

But movies still play an important role, and directors have planned to open 20 new theatres—many in shopping centres—over the 1967-68 period while disposing of 12 old ones.

More younger people are going to the moving pictures these days, and with a growing movement toward Sunday showings, attendance should improve steadily, the company feels.

The theatre holdings of Famous Players are calculated at a value of $53 million.

Royal Securities Corp. Ltd., in its weekly bond letter, suggests Air Canada will go to the U.S. market for financing of its coming capital expansion program.

Noting that government advances to Crown corporations has advanced $52.3 million in January for a total of $1.048 billion in the current fiscal year, and that for the coming year these loans have been limited to $750 million, the letter says:

"It would not be surprising if further restraint were exercised by the government, forcing Crown corporations to seek outside sources of capital, especially U.S. sources in the case of Air Canada."

Auto Trade Deficit Continues to Shrink

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada's trade deficit with the U.S. in automotive products continued to shrink in 1967 under the limited free trade agreement, commerce department statistics indicate.

The Canadian deficit is $389,000,000 in American funds, preliminary figures show. This compares with $486,000,000 in 1966, $692,000,000 in 1965—when the agreement was launched—and $578,000,000 in 1964.

Verification of the figures is expected within a few weeks when a special report to Congress on the year 1967 is made, as required by law. In the past there has been some discrepancy between the two sets of figures due to differences in classification of the items falling under the agreement provisions. Replacement parts are also excluded from the special annual report.

But the commerce statistics show a hefty increase in two-way trade—to $2,871,000,000 against $2,086,000,000 in 1966—and an increase of more than 100 per cent in U.S. imports of passenger cars from Canada.

Even so, if the deficit has been cut further, it may well give new voice to congressional critics of the auto production agreement. Congress approved it in 1965 on the official rationale that it would preserve the U.S. surplus and ward off a go-it-alone policy of more tariff protection by Canada.

CANADIAN EXPORTS JUMP

On the Canadian side, the value of passenger-car shipments to the U.S. vaulted to $818,000,000 in 1967 from $371,000,000 in 1966 and only $77,000,000 in 1965.

Imports of Canadian trucks rose to $164,000,000 from $82,000,000 in 1966 and $12,000,000 in 1965.

U.S. shipments of passenger cars to Canada rose 44 per cent to a value of $563,000,000. Trucks for Canada were valued at $115,000,000.

The U.S. continued to have a big edge in parts and accessories, at $794,000,000 worth against Canadian shipments valued at $210,000,000.

Engines and parts for Canada were valued at $158,000,000 against imports from Canada of $49,000,000.

Total U.S. automotive shipments to Canada were worth $1,630,000,000 against imports from Canada of $1,241,000,000.

The Canada-U.S. agreement did away with tariffs for manufacturers—but not consumers—on most new vehicles and their original parts. A review begun last December on the first three years of the agreement is continuing, with no indication yet what revisions might be recommended.

The special annual review of 1967 operations under the agreement will show as well whether Canadian retail prices have edged closer to the lower levels in the U.S. Some improvement was reported for 1966.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.05 for cheques, $1.053 for notes and $1.064 for silver.

SALES were $1.094 for cheques and $1.091 for notes.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was down 1/32 at $1.08 1/2.

NEW YORK—The Canadian dollar was up 1/32 at 98 5/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was up at $2.95.

IWA Talks Bring New Stalemate

VANCOUVER (CP)—Negotiations to end the five-month strike by 4,000 woodworkers in the Southern Interior of British Columbia broke off again Monday, with no indication of when they might be resumed.

Conciliation officer Jack Sherlock, acting as intermediary between the International Woodworkers of America and company negotiators, returned to Victoria after talks ended in stalemate.

Jack Moore, IWA regional president, said later in a statement:

"Meetings directed by Sherlock between the IWA Southern Interior negotiating committee and representatives of the employees' association broke off when the employers refused to consider the union's counter-proposals and also refused to alter or amend in any way their position as announced prior to the meeting."

H. B. Simpson of Kelowna, chairman of the employers' committee, countered:

"The IWA committee told us they would not consider any settlement short of parity. Our committee has obviously wasted its time again. The union leaders appear to have no desire to settle this strike. In face of this implacable attitude, it is impossible to negotiate with the IWA."

The IWA launched the strike Oct. 4, demanding parity with coast woodworkers, $2.76 an hour. Interior rate is $2.26.

Most recent offer by the companies was 62 cents an hour over three years, from the contract expiry date of last August. The IWA has proposed a 77-cent raise over the same period.

GROCERIES SITUATION UNDER STUDY—TURNER

OTTAWA (CP)—No formal inquiry into the high cost of groceries in Western Canada has been launched but a study into the situation is under way, Consumer Affairs Minister Turner said on Monday.

Mr. Turner said his department's investigation and research director is studying a section of the Batten report which deals with the western grocery business. If allegations in the report about it were substantiated, a formal federal investigation would be undertaken.

Safeway Denies Excessive Gains

EDMONTON (CP)—Canada Safeway Ltd. Monday denied "categorically and emphatically" that it has derived any excessive profits in any area of Canada.

In a full-page advertisement in the Edmonton Journal, the company said:

"We in Safeway are frankly perplexed as well as shocked by what has been reported in the press as the conclusions of the Prairie commission."

"We categorically and emphatically deny that Canada Safeway has derived any excessive profits in any area of Canada—from discriminatory discounts in our procurement, as alleged, or from our retail pricing, as also charged, or from any other source."

The advertisement follows by one week the release of the Batten Royal Commission report on costs and inflation on the Prairies.

The three-member commission, set up by the three Prairie provincial governments and headed by Judge Mary Batten of Saskatoon, called for an immediate federal investigation under the Combines Investigation Act, giving particular attention to the dominant position of the Weston companies and Canada Safeway Ltd.

The commission also said grocery profits were excessive and there was an over-abundance of stores.

The advertisement said Safeway regrets "this unfortunate and misleading publicity." It said the company believes its Prairie operations are efficient.

"The recently publicized criticisms of Prairie food retailing appear to have been based on misconception and theoretical conjecture, rather than upon the by now well documented record."

CPR Shows Sharp Drop In Profits for 1967

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway said Monday net income from railway and miscellaneous sources in 1967 was $34,765,953 or $2.19 a share compared with $48,305,517 or $3.13 in 1966.

Net railway revenues were $39,635,802 compared with the 1966 figure of $50,219,767.

Gross railway revenues climbed to $560,694,963 compared with $553,830,250 in 1966 but railway expenses jumped to $521,059,161 over the 1966 figure of $503,610,483.

Income of $20,065,438 was received from Canadian Pacific Investment Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the CPR.

This is the same income as received in 1966 because C.P.I. Ltd. declared the same dividend in the two years.

Adding the dividends received from C.P.I., the total earnings per common share were $3.59 in 1967 compared with $4.53 in 1966.

The income received from C.P.I. was not taken into account in arriving at the figure for net income from railway and miscellaneous sources.

Net earnings from telecommunications before income tax were $4,138,919 compared to $3,516,036 in 1966. The report said these earnings rose "due to the continued high rate of growth of Telex and a moderate expansion in the use of private wire services."

Operation of steamships resulted in a loss of $748,197 compared with the 1966 loss of $1,434,389.

In a separate financial statement Canadian Pacific Airlines Ltd. reported net income of $3-209,534, down from the 1966 total of $7,375,388.

All shares in the airline are held by the CPR.

Operating revenues of the airline climbed to $95,224,832 from the 1966 total of $82,638,371 but operating expenses jumped to $91,113,095 over 1966's $74,679,438.

Northwestern B.C. Gets Timber Complex

SMITHERS (CP)—Plans for construction of a $100,000,000 forest products complex at Houston, in northwestern B.C., were announced Monday night by Bulkley Valley Pulp and Timber Ltd.

Derek Currie, executive vice-president and general manager of the company, told a meeting of Bulkley Valley community leaders that detailed planning has begun on the development's first phase.

Houston, 400 miles north of Vancouver, will be the company's manufacturing centre, he said. The company has purchased more than 3,000 acres of property there.

The first phase of the complex will be a sawmill with an annual capacity of 200,000 board feet of lumber, expected to go into production in 1970.

This phase, along with construction of 135 miles of all-weather logging roads, will cost $22,000,000, Mr. Currie said.

He said the company is considering a plywood operation.

Also planned is a combined lumber, pulp and paper complex that will employ 1,200 workers. The pulp mill, by agreement with the provincial government, must be in operation by 1971. Bulkley Valley Pulp is owned by Bowater Canadian Corp. and Consolidated Bathurst Ltd.

Xerox Employees To Share Profits

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Xerox Corp. employees will divide about $23,000,000 of the office-equipment firm's 1967 profits, the company announced Monday.

Payments in the profit-sharing plan will be made in cash, Xerox stock or in benefits deferred until retirement. About 60 per cent of the total is to go into general pension funds, which now total nearly $60,000,000, a spokesman said.

It employs 17,000 persons.

SPORTS
DIARYBy SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—The Detroit Tigers, who came within one victory of winning the American League pennant last season, lost it on an error of judgment, committed on May 10, 1967. That was the day the Tigers' management arrived at the belief that Bill Monbouquette at 30 was a washed-up pitcher.

"We do not feel you can help us," said Jim Campbell, the general manager, to Monbouquette, who had been permitted to pitch only two innings since the start of the season. This was a bit blunt, but some clubs are not renowned for a sense of delicacy in these matters. Monbo was being told he's had it with the Tigers. They were giving him his unconditional release.

In jettisoning Monbouquette, the Tigers were, in effect, also giving the American League pennant its unconditional release. The winning pitcher they needed in those last frantic days of the season when they were blowing the pennant for want of both starters and relievers was then doing nicely for the Yankees. There wasn't a Detroit pitcher who could match the 2.33 earned-run average Monbo was showing in 35 games with the Yankees.

The Bill Monbouquette saga of '67 runs a whole track of emotions. Here was a one-time 20-game winner for the Red Sox being told he was through. He was the most famous name in baseball for a day in 1962 when he just missed, by a single base on balls, pitching a perfect game against the White Sox and had to be content with a mere no-hitter. In 1961, he'd struck out 17 Senators to set a night game record. But on last May 10 there no longer appeared to be a place in baseball for him.

"I tried to tell the Tigers I could win if I could get more work," Monbouquette said this week in the Yankee camp where he is a respected and solid figure, "and they said I could join their Columbus farm club. I might even have done that, but they wanted me on the cheap, at less than half the salary my major league contract called for. I packed and went home."

For the next three weeks, Monbouquette said, "I was all alone by the telephone." He called 17 of the 20 major league clubs and told them he was available. The telephone bills were big for a man out of work. "I know what they mean when they say: 'Don't call us, we'll call you.' I finally heard from one club, the Mets. They'd take a look at me, they said, if I went down to Jacksonville and pitched against them when they played their farm club. I agreed."

He pitched three innings for Jacksonville against the Mets, fanned five and allowed no runs, "but Bing Devine wasn't impressed. He said my fast ball wasn't exploding. I told him of course it wasn't and hadn't for a couple of years. But, I told him, I could get guys out with my control and breaking stuff. The best he could do was offer me a job at Jacksonville. I turned it down."

And then, just before the June 1 cut-down date, he heard from the Yankees. It was another of those "We'll take a look" affairs. He pitched five innings for their Syracuse farm club against the Yankees. "I know I didn't look good and I tried to explain to Lee MacPhail it was just a case of needing more work. I wasn't happy when MacPhail put it on a 'We'll call you' basis, but a few days later, of all things, he did call."

The Yankees had an opening because Whitey Ford was having arm trouble and was going on the retired list. "Ralph Houk told me I could get plenty of work. They gave me a contract with a clause in it that called for more money if I was still with the club on July 15. It was pretty clear that I had to make good by that date."

Monbo gave the Yankees some fair relief jobs, but nothing spectacular. "Now we're in Baltimore and it's a two-night thing and it's between games. The clubhouse boy came out to the bullpen and said 'The boss wants to see you in the clubhouse.' I go in there looking for Houk and who do I see there with him, but, Omgod, MacPhail. Now I begin to put a few things together. It's July 14, one day before the deadline when the Yankees can save money by cutting me loose. This is it, I figures."

Monbo had reckoned very wrongly. Houk called him in because he wanted him to start the second game, which would be a short one, anyway, because of the 11:59 curfew in Baltimore. The first game had twice been delayed by rain. "Houk said I could do him a favor by starting because he wanted to save Fritz Peterson for the next day. He said he knew I would have only five minutes to warm up in."

He whipped through that warm-up, huffing and puffing in a hurry, Monbouquette said, "and then I got lucky. The game only lasted six innings but at the curfew it was 0-0, and Houk thanked me a lot. And then he started to give me more work. I started and won, and relieved and won. Against Minnesota I went in in the sixth inning and pitched nine innings of scoreless relief. In one 53-inning stretch I didn't walk a man. I won seven games and dropped two starts 1-0. I thought I had a good year."

The Yankees thought so, too. There was more money in the contract they mailed Monbo last January, in fact more than he got from the Red Sox after winning 20 games in 1963. "The Red Sox are slow with money," he said. "They only offered me a $3,000 raise after I won those 20." The Yankees are his favorite ball club and Houk his favorite manager, Monbo said.

And how about the Tigers? "I had a feeling late last season when I was winning," Monbo said, "that the Tigers were thinking more about me than I was about them."

ELLIS-QUARRY FIGHT

It Will Also Be
Lifetime Payoff

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Action, Inc., will be televised virtually worldwide. The ABC network will carry it live and the fight will be beamed to Europe, Japan and much of Asia. A 150-mile area around Oakland will be blacked out.

Each of the fighters has been guaranteed $125,000 for the night's work and the tournament winner is almost assured of a match against Joe Frazier.

Frazier knocked out Buster Mathis March 4 to win recognition in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Illinois—as Cassius Clay's successor to the heavyweight throne.

A live game of $400,000 is expected for the 15-round bout with tickets scaled at $10 to $50. Quarry, a 22-year-old from Bellflower, Calif., a Los Angeles suburb, barely got by the tournament's quarter-final event. He battled Floyd Patterson to a draw, then narrowly outpointed the former champion.

The Californian then disposed of Thad Spencer, flooring him several times before their fight was halted with three seconds left in the 12th and final round.

Ellis, 28, of Louisville, Ky., and a sparring partner of the deposed Clay, defeated Leotis Martin in the quarter-finals and then beat Oscar Bonavena of Argentina to advance to the last round of the WBA ladder.

Members of the Chinook Club of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will hold their final frostbite salmon derby of the season on March 24, with fishing from dawn until 2 p.m.

Chinooks who won club trophies in 1967 will receive their awards this Saturday when the club holds its annual meeting at the Inghram Hotel at 8 p.m. The meeting will be preceded by a dinner and followed by a dance. Tickets must be picked up by Thursday because of catering arrangements.

TORONTO PAPER PREDICTS ...

Vancouver to Get Seals?

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says that Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League are expected to be sold to a group of Canadian businessmen this week and moved to Vancouver for the 1968-69 season.

The story says top secret, behind-the-scenes negotiations between officials of John Labatt Ltd. and prominent businessmen from western Canada, including millionaire sportsman Max Bell of Calgary, and Oakland Seals have reached the point where an agreement is due to be signed. "This phase of the operation could be completed before the end of the week with only minor details left to be ironed out," the story says.

The Seals, playing their first season in the Western Division of the expanded NHL, have only 15 victories and 14 ties after 67 games and are anchored at the bottom of the division.

The Seals have been in financial trouble since the beginning of the season and are reported to be about $700,000 in arrears to the league.

The Seals were given until May 15 to pay the amount. If the deal materializes, the switching of the franchise to Vancouver must be approved by the governors of the 11 teams in the NHL.

The current owners of the Oakland franchise are headed by 29-year-old Barend Van Gerbig. The group had bought the franchise from George Fleharty and Shasta Corporation.

... SALE THIS WEEK

Rudy Pilous was then dismissed as general manager and coach before the start of this season and has filed suit against the owners for about $100,000 in the remaining three years salary due.

The club name was changed from California Seals to Oakland Seals early in the season, resulting in loss of fan support from San Francisco. The Seals have been sold out on only two occasions this season during visits by Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

SOMETHING IN WORKS

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said today he had no personal knowledge or documents to confirm the sale of Oakland Seals or impending sale of the club to a Canadian group of businessmen and a subsequent move of the franchise to Vancouver next season.

"I know that something is in the works," Campbell said.

WON'T CALL ...

Avery Still Says 'No'

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—A majority of the members of the International Olympics Committee's executive board has called for a meeting of the entire IOC to consider the South African problem, but IOC President Avery Brundage says no.

Any decision to call a meeting of the full IOC will have to be made by the board when it meets to discuss the withdrawal of more than 40 nations because of the IOC's decision to readmit South Africa to the Mexico Games in October.

"It is possible for the president to call a full meeting, but he won't," said Brundage in Chicago. Brundage said he was surprised that the five members had called for the full meeting.

He said he had discussed calling an executive board meeting here on April 20. Those calling for the meeting of the full IOC say an executive board meeting makes little sense since only the full IOC can vote to change the decision to readmit South Africa.

Absent as they headed for Salmon Arm and British Columbia high school tournament were Claremont players Barb Tribe, Trish Spooner and Jeannie McHattie and coach Mary Coutts. Mainland players Mary McDonald and Barb Robertson left team at Vancouver.

MIXED CURLING

Champs Start
With Victories

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—Defending champion Saskatchewan remains undefeated after two rounds in the Canadian mixed curling championships.

Skipped by Larry McGrath, 28, of Kindersley, the wheat province foursome downed Peter Connell of Arnprior, Ont., 10-6 in their first game and edged Edward Stochinsky of Edmonton 5-4 in Monday's opening rounds.

McGrath, playing the take-out game, he says he prefers "when we're ahead," was tied 4-4 with Alberta after nine ends. With his last shot he wicked off Stochinsky's shot rock and rolled to the four-foot to win. "We were outlucked," said Stochinsky, adding that McGrath "curled very well—it was a real good game."

B.C. RINK WINS
Another favorite, Earl Carson of Canadian Forces Base Bagotville, Que., was the only other rink with a 2-0 record in the 11-team round-robin competition.

Carson defeated Fred Fraser of Moncton, N.B., 10-7 in his first game and squeezed past Northern Ontario's Bill Tetley of Port Arthur 5-4 in the second. Tied in third place, with one win, are Alberta, Northern Ontario, Cliff Robertson of Halifax.

ALCINDOR JOINS LIST OF OLYMPIC SKIPPERS

NEW YORK (AP)—The number of college basketball stars who will pass up their chance to make the U.S. Olympic team has grown to five while Life magazine quotes Lew Alcindor as "not wanting to get caught in the middle" of the growing Olympic Games boycott movement.

Westley Unseld, the two-time all-American from Kentucky, said Monday in Louisville he was "weary" from playing and that he would pass up the Olympic trials later this month in Indianapolis.

Concentrating on school work was the reason given by Alcindor and his UCLA teammates Mike Warren and Lucius Allen for not trying out for the team.

But Life said the trio admitted their refusal was "implicit approval of the boycott."

J. D. Morgan, athletic director at UCLA, said the decision of the three players not to enter the trials "was entirely scholastic."

Schranz Gets Support
In 'Was Robbed' Plea

NEW YORK (AP)—Karl Schranz of Austria said Monday he had received scores of letters and telegrams, most of them from America, agreeing that he had gotten a bad deal in the Olympic men's slalom ski race awarded to France's Jean-Claude Killy.

Schranz and Killy were members of an all-star European contingent arriving for the World Cup races at Aspen, Colo., March 15-17; the International Team races at Sun Valley, Idaho, March 21-24; and the Governor's cup at Heavenly Valley, Calif., April 5-7.

Schranz was first declared winner and later disqualified in the men's special slalom race at Grenoble, France, last month. The gold medal was awarded to Killy, giving him his third gold medal and a sweep of the Alpine events.

"It wasn't fair—I was robbed," Schranz said at the time. He had missed a gate on one run on which he charged a distraction and took a second run in which he recorded the winning time. However, the jury later said the first run had to be counted. Schranz declined to go to the airport press room when Killy was interviewed.

Killy said the Heavenly Valley meet would be his last as an amateur and he didn't know what he was going to do after that.

Killy, recently threatened with suspension by the International Skiing Federation for allegedly accepting money from a Paris magazine, said he was not worried.

"I showed them that I had not violated the rules," Killy was asked why he was quitting amateur skiing. "I am at the top. I have no higher to go," he replied.

MONTREAL (CP)—Just when everyone is ready to concede the lead in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race to someone else, Stan Mikita, Chicago Black Hawks centre, pops up atop the heap again.

Last week Mikita's bid for his fourth scoring championship was challenged by New York Rangers' Rod Gilbert as both were tied with 73 points. However, statistics released by the NHL Monday show Mikita has once again beaten back the challenge.

Mikita collected his 38th goal and five assists last week to give him 79 points with eight games left to play.

It's getting close to Vancouver Island Open time, and it has always seemed obvious that the great popularity of the Times-sponsored tournament can be found in the fact that it is a match-play affair.

On a grander scale, match-play events started to disappear over a decade ago because of the professionals' influence on major tournaments.

The Times tournament has never changed, and always has remained one of the most interesting and fun-filled tournaments around. Long before the qualifying round (March 31), I'll bet the family jewels the entry list will be over-subscribed for about the 12th straight year.

I won't stand up and say "I told you so!" but there was personal pleasure in reading a report out of New York that suggests match-play golf may return to the big pro circuit.

The Professional Golf Association is considering a number of proposals. The PGA championship was the last major tour event to make the move from match to medal play. That was in 1958, and since then the PGA has been to one individual—just another weekend tournament.

There's an excitement about match play that will never be found in medal tournaments. And I'll be the first to agree that medal play does—in the long run—produce a truer indication of the better golfer.

The man-against-man match is favored by many leading tour pros, and its return could inject a new and greater interest on the gold train.

In the meantime, the Times Island Open remains match play. Forever, I hope.

How would you like to say "no" to a new auto and cash?

It happened in the Astrojet golf classic in California recently. A number of amateur golfers turned down prizes in order to retain their amateur status.

Among them, Otto Graham, Joe DiMaggio, Bill Rigney, Alvin Dark, Mickey Mantle, Daryle Lamonica, Willie Mays, Gino Capetelli and Carl Yastrzemski.

Between 'em, they said no to $5,000 in cash and Graham refused the new wheels.

SHORT CHIPS: Doug Olson, an impressive youngster from Oregon who has played in Victoria on at least two occasions in the past two years, is one of a handful of amateurs who have received invitations to play in this year's Masters University of Victoria's golf team is rather proud of its showing against UBC's talented crew. In four varsity matches, the Uvics managed a tie and lost three, all close ones. Victoria's Jayvees won all four of their matches against UBC's junior team.

Big John Furnston was a marvel of consistency at Uplands Sunday to lead a big field in the members' spring opening. He posted a 71-65 to walk off with top prize. The left-hander had eight 4s and a deuce on the front nine for a fine 34. Dave McCall took the gross award with a two-over-par 72. At Cedar Hill, Ann Storer and George Ferguson teamed up to capture low net honors in a mixed two-ball tournament.

Four pairings came in with net 67s to share the lead in Gorge Vale's Clark Trophy event. The teams—Ernie Oliver and Tom McIntyre, Urban Allen and Len McDonald, Jay Umphrey and John Phillips, and Tom Hourigan and Dave Mick—will play off for the trophy at a later date. Allen and McDonald came in with a par 73 to claim gross honors in the best-ball event.

India Roms To Test Win

AUCKLAND (AP) — After the Indian spinners had routed New Zealand for only 101 in the home team's second innings, India romped to victory today by 272 runs on the final day of the fourth cricket test match.

The sweeping victory gave India a 3-1 advantage in the test series.

The Indian captain, the Nawab of Pataudi, declared the Indian second innings closed at 261-5 after an hours' batting, giving New Zealand an impossible target of scoring 374 runs for victory in 290 minutes on a bad-weather pitch.

New Zealand's weak batting was emphasized by the fact that six batsmen were bowled.

Doral Winner Takes Lead From Knudson

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (CP-AP) — Tom Weiskopf's second-place $12,000 finish in the Doral Open at Miami Sunday pushed him ahead of George Knudson of Toronto for the lead in U.S. pro golf money winners, official PGA figures show.

Weiskopf's bankroll jumped to $46,242 in official prizes and a total of $52,545. The 25-year-old pro has played in seven tournaments, winning one and finishing in the top five in four others.

Knudson had held the money-winners lead until the Doral Open, in which he failed to make the 146 cut by one stroke after having won two consecutive tournaments.

Knudson now is listed second with $43,662 in official winnings, with a total of $50,310.

The others in the top 10, with official winnings and totals, are:

Al Geiberger $32,575, $33,705;
Kermit Zarley $27,752, $31,225;

Young Bowlers Bonspiel's Best

Youth and consistency paved the way to victory for Milliken's Militia in the Colonist event of the fifth annual Vancouver Island fivepin bonspiel at Gibson's Recreations on Sunday.

Robin Milliken (15 years-old), Jack Milliken (19) and Dennis Hazard (20) formed the group that remained undefeated by downing seven opponents.

In the first matches they formed the habit of setting up a big first game and didn't have to face any pressure later on.

When the pressure did show up in the final games, they proved equal to it, faltering only once but getting through on a big early lead.

PRESSURE TEST

First pressure test came in the eighth against the Scotties, who nabbed the 180 handicap difference plus eight points in the first game when Milliken's crew shot their bonspiel low of 694.

Jack Milliken bowled a 328 to aid a 931 total in the second game to rack up a 201 point lead. In the third game Scotties smashed back to within 33 points as Robin Milliken and Lee York both gained 225's to ward off disaster.

An even closer finish came when they played the semi-final against Duncan Headwaters with officials taking a second look at the score-sheets before announcing them as winners.

CLOSE FINISH

They downed Mizfits by a mere 28 points in the final after going down 86 points after the first game.

Two of the youngsters were members of the Youth Bowling Congress and ineligible for the $100 cash prizes given the other.

ROD CADDELL ... collects cash

ANNE GOODMAN WINS

Caddell Captures Top Tenpin Prize

Rod Caddell is now $120 richer and the possessor of a trophy after winning the second annual, eight-game, scratch singles, round-robin tenpin bowling tournament Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Under tournament rules, the top five scorers of the eight game series play a round-robin playoff. Thus the fourth and fifth-place finishers play a single game, the winner takes the third-place finisher and the second-place bowler for the chance to play the top scorer.

Caddell finished on top out of a field of 36 competitors with a total of 1,584, and then waited as fifth-place Vince Brown tripped fourth-place Richard Watson of Vancouver 195-168.

Watson of Vancouver 195-168, third-place Andy McLeary 157-129, and second-place Tom Newbegin 158-154.

Caddell then defeated McLeary in the final, 214-191.

Mrs. Goodman finished fourth with a 1,357 but rose through the ranks by defeating fifth-place Coby Lobbezoo 176-174; third-place Mo King 191-150, and second-place Helen Young 216-129. Then, in the final against high-scoring qualifier Jessie Holding, who had 1,424, she won, 167-161.

Ray Berry Retires
BALTIMORE (AP)—Split-end Raymond Berry, who caught 631 passes for the Baltimore Colts and gained 9,275 yards and 68 touchdowns over his 13-year career, has announced he is retiring from active play in the National Football League.

Veteran Pitchers Find Comeback Trail Bumpy

By Associated Press

Three pitchers who have known better times — Dick Radatz, Jim O'Toole and Steve Barber — ran into roadblocks Monday along the baseball comeback trail.

Radatz, the once-mighty Monster of the Boston Red Sox bullpen, is trying to win a spot with Chicago Cubs. He came on in the fourth inning with the Cubs trailing San Francisco 2-1 in their exhibition game.

Radatz walked the first three men, uncorked two wild pitches and hit a batter and two runs were in. Manager Leo Durocher yanked him when he walked the first two batters in the next inning. The Giants went on to a 7-2 victory.

O'Toole, a 19-game winner in Cincinnati's 1961 pennant push and now trying to catch on with Chicago White Sox, fared somewhat better. But he still was clipped for two runs in three innings and was the losing pitcher as Los Angeles Dodgers trounced the Chicks 7-2.

BLASTED FROM MOUND

Barber's misfortune took the form of an eight-run second inning in New York Yankees' 11-7 loss to Washington Senators. Barber compiled a 10-18 record last season with Baltimore Orioles and New York and showed signs of regaining his 20-game form of 1963.

But Washington teed off on him with two-run doubles by Paul Casanova and Eddie Brinkman and a 450-foot, three-run homer by Mike Epstein.

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals edged Boston 6-5 in 10 innings in a rematch of last October's World Series.

Besides the Senator-Yankee slugfest, there was another 11-7 game with Bob Raudman's pinch three-run homer propelling Cincinnati to victory over Pittsburgh Pirates' 'A' squad. And Detroit Tigers, with Jim Northrup and Ed Mathews driving in three runs apiece, walloped Philadelphia Phillies 9-5.

ORLANDO HUSTLES

Orlando Cepeda, the National League's Most Valuable Player, outlegged an infield hit to drive in the winning run for St. Louis. Cepeda had homered earlier, along with team-mate Mike Shannon and Boston's Reggie Smith, Mike Andrews and Gene Oliver.

The Mets edged Houston Astros 4-3 in 11 innings on a bases-loaded walk to Jerry Morales, a rookie outfielder. Woodie Held drove in one run and scored the other as California Angels edged Cleveland Indians 2-1.

Atlanta Braves beat Minnesota Twins 6-4 in an error-filled night game.

DECISION is expected by Wednesday on next move for crippled Liberian tanker Mandoil II pictured at sheltered Head Bay in Nootka Sound where she was towed after collision with a Japanese freighter. She may be taken to Tacoma to unload her oil cargo or the oil may be off-loaded to tankers at Head Bay. The tanker could be brought to Victoria for repairs. (CP Wirephoto.)

Donna's Bills To Be Paid By Legion

CAMPBELL RIVER — Donna Bailey, 19, who handed in her Miss Campbell River crown, will be repaid the $300 clothing bill she ran up during her eight-month reign.

Fred Wood, chairman of the Royal Canadian Legion committee that organizes the beauty contest, made the announcement in a statement Monday. He said $100 has been paid and the remainder will be paid when Miss Bailey produces proper bills.

She left her throne after complaining her title was "an ordeal" and blamed the committee for "one disappointing experience after another."

Mr. Wood said Miss Bailey was told she would have to buy clothes for special events and that she would be reimbursed "but this should not have been misconstrued as an authority to go on a shopping spree."

He said she has done a "great disservice" to the community, the Pacific National Exhibition and herself by handing in the crown.

He admitted no telegrams or flowers were sent to her when she represented Campbell River at the PNE last year and blamed the oversight on a lack of communication between members of the committee.

Paul Gelsvik, 714 Watson Rd., also pleaded guilty to driving while suspended and received another 15-day term.

Court was told Gelsvik had been told Saturday morning by RCMP his licence was suspended. Later that day they saw him driving.

They discovered he had painted a set of 1966 licence plates to look like new ones. They are the same color both years.

Gelsvik had painted the "6" in '66 to look like an "8". The police weren't fooled.

UNDERGROUND WIRING BID

'We're Being Led by Nose'

DUNCAN—Ald. Martin Lukaitis wants city council action before Duncan's downtown becomes "a forest of transformers and power poles."

Council agreed Monday to investigate a bylaw requiring underground wiring but did not accept Ald. Lukaitis' recommendation to put a work stoppage order on a new medical building under construction.

Ald. Lukaitis complained: "We are being led by the nose by the contractors."

"Power can be distributed from inside buildings instead of from the public street."

Ald. James Saunders cautioned council: "Let's not make fools of ourselves and pass a bylaw which can't be enforced."

Ald. Dick Benzie agreed with the idea of a bylaw but stated underground wiring costs could be prohibitive and such wiring impossible in certain conditions.

Works foreman Frank Hayes said electric power permits are issued by a government inspector and not City Hall.

Aldermen Saunders and Benzie will serve with Mayor Jim Quill on a special committee to investigate the situation.

'REFLECTS ON COMMUNITY'

Aldermen Rap Water Standpipes

DUNCAN—Houses within a two-block radius of the city boundary should be served by a water line and not from standpipes.

And they should have sewer lines instead of outhouses.

Ald. Dick Benzie said Monday at city council meeting aldermen should support Cowichan Indian Band's protest against capital expenditure cutbacks by the Indian Affairs branch.

The conditions he referred to exist on the Somenos reserve along Allenby Road.

Ald. Benzie said: "It reflects on us as a community and could show in the health of our children."

Ald. James Saunders said:

"Water is available to the Indians on Allenby Road if they want it."

"They have only to ask for it and pay for it. They get water free from the standpipes."

He said similar sewer service is available to them if they request it but there would be some connection cost involved.

Ald. Benzie said it was not his intention to take the city to task but ask support for the Indians.

Indian Affairs department has cut $198,000 from the Cowichan capital fund allocation, including money for water and sewer service to the new Boys Road subdivision of 19 houses.

Major Jim Quill said a joint meeting of the city and band councils is being arranged.

Tourist chairman Sam Keeble of Duncan Chamber of Commerce asked council to reconsider its chamber grant for this year.

The chamber asked for $2,000 and will get $1,300, the same as last year.

Ald. Benzie (who was chamber president last year) said he feels council in its present financial position could not give more however much it would like.

Ald. Lukaitis said the chamber always seemed to be in financial straits and perhaps the answer would be for council to set aside a percentage of the business tax.

Ald. Saunders suggested the business people might not object to a slight increase in the tax.

The question was referred to the finance committee.

Council will take immediate action to stop the dumping of septic tank effluent at the Koksilah dump.

Action was requested by Cowichan Indian band council. Chief Dennis Alphonse said the effluent is a nuisance and menace to health.

COUNTED OUT PAINTING BY NUMBERS

DUNCAN—A Duncan driver's not-so-delicate touch with a paint brush has cost him 30 days in jail for displaying unauthorised licence plates.

Court was told Gelsvik had been told Saturday morning by RCMP his licence was suspended. Later that day they saw him driving.

Arthur Mayse

Why this should be, I don't know, but after a few days away from the machine that dominates my working hours, it is necessary for me to learn to type again. So here we go, with numerous stumbles and X-ing-out, into a survey of Victoria and environs as a March tourist finds them.

The visitor's name is Leone Edgar, Montreal is her city, and like most Montrealeers, she wouldn't trade it.

"But when I go on a trip," says she, "I'm interested in what other cities have to offer. The last thing I want is to find a replica of my home surroundings."

Armed with this sensible attitude and a ready camera, Mrs. Edgar has been sampling our scenery, climate and auxiliary attractions for the past week.

She had not expected so large an island. Also, she was surprised to find "north woods" scenery in a climate so much softer than she associates with evergreen forests.

Victoria, "a very attractive city," has claimed most of her time. She came to it with the usual preconceived image—"charming, quaint and distinctly English"—and spent most of a day trying to match the legend with the fact.

"English? her verdict runs. 'No, and not quite, either. Charming? Yes, with lovely sea views wherever one goes. And with spring still so far away at home, it's been wonderful to find flowers in bloom. I don't know how many pictures I've taken of your flowering trees.'"

(Observe her, sturdily planted in mid-street with a Montrealer's disregard of traffic, trying to catch an entire block of deep pink Japanese plum in the view finder.)

Like most visitors, she wanted to see Butchart Gardens.

My wife and I thought the gardens might be closed this early in the season. But they're open year-round, we learned; and from mid-October to April 1, the proprietors, in a notably amiable gesture, decline to charge an admission fee.

Our guest found few flowers, but even without them, the gardens were handsome enough to keep her camera busy.

The several restaurants she lunched or dined at pleased her, although she felt that we could follow coastal California's lead and make much more of our seafood. With so many boats in evidence, she was puzzled at the absence of a meal-serving fisherman's wharf. (As I am: we're missing a good bit there!)

Her summation of Victoria: "A mild, quiet leisurely, very pleasant city, and one I would have liked to live in when I was younger. But—with a shrug and a smile—"I'm in love with Montreal."

On Sunday night, I settled down to view "The Wild Heart," a Walt Disney production that features Victoria actors against what purports to be a Vancouver Island background.

As a Disney fan from away back, I was prepared to enjoy this film, and... up to a point... did.

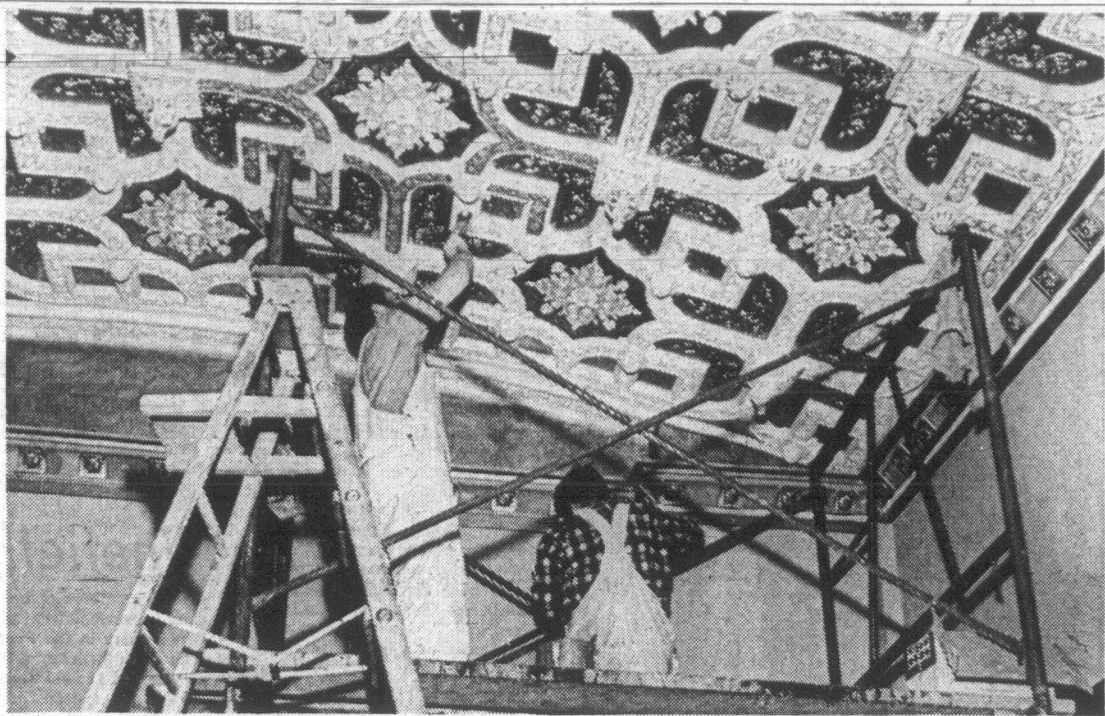

The acting was competent, the scenery pleasing, and the filming well up to the Disney standard. But... hey... what goes on here, anyhow? Boy and girl from prairies get off a Viscount at Pat Bay. Without transition, they and the fisherman-uncle who meets them are shown proceeding along a float-string to a fishboat which then chugs toward uncle's abode. This appears to be, first, on a Gulf Island, and then, by a shift that escapes my understanding, at Long Beach.

Presently, darn if a bobcat isn't raiding uncle's chicken-run, despite the fact that we have no bobcats this side of the mainland.

Toss in a shot of Indians dipping salmon from a thundering Long Beach canyon, and this sure ain't the Island I've lived on these many years.

No slur on the clever young actors—but this mishmash of nature-faking and scrambled geography needs explaining.

Surely, when we have so much to offer the film-makers, such tampering with fact isn't necessary!

MODERN MICHELANGELOS at work on ceiling of Empress Hotel's Elizabethan Room don't work on their backs but share something of the master's frustrations. Brought here from Vancouver from a firm skilled in Old World methods, the two artists spent 20 days on the job using three blues, two golds, red, white and cream to create a Persian style which reflects the carpeting. The new lounge will seat 35 persons in a "club atmosphere". Elizabethan Room was formerly an antique shop, now will function as a second cocktail lounge and will feature re-upholstered antique furniture. Moulded designs in ceiling were always there but lacking color separation, were hardly noticed. (Photo by Halkett.)

'MEMBERS NOT ASKED'

Only Executive Fights Posting

A bid by the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Society to prevent the posting of pollution signs has not been endorsed by the general membership.

Mrs. W. P. Rankin, 1440 Craigflower, a member of the society whose property overlooks the Gorge, made the charge Monday.

"Lloyd Smith (president of the society) and the executive are doing this on their own," she said. "I haven't even heard an anti-sign program discussed at regular meetings."

Mr. Smith, writing on behalf of the society, has asked the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board not to post signs residents of Portage Inlet and the Inner Harbor warning of the dangers of swimming in polluted water.

He launched his plea after Metro health chief Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread announced that the "No swimming—water polluted" signs would go up this spring.

MAKE PEOPLE AWARE

"I don't want those signs posted any more than anyone else," Mrs. Rankin said this morning. "But they have to be posted. We have to keep pushing and pushing to make people aware of the dangers of pollution."

"We can't just sit back and do nothing or, as sure as the Lord made little potatoes we're going to have an epidemic of typhoid."

Overdose Victim In Good Condition

A man was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday by three companions who ran off after saying he was suffering from an overdose of heroin.

Hospital officials report the 34-year-old Port Alberni man, unconscious when he was brought in, is now in good condition.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Purse Pack Cleaner For Emergency Spots

By Penny Saver

There is something so mean about laughing at other people. Every now and then I assume a very moral tone and condemn all practical jokes, slapstick and situation comedy as degrading but I must admit to laughing at others as often as anyone else. I have tried to plumb the motives behind such a sense of humor that makes a pratfall or face full of pie an object of mirth. The only conclusion I can reach, however, is that we feel embarrassed for our self-felt clumsiness and are pleased to see it exhibited in others.

I giggled a bit along with everyone else the other day when a friend engaged in a scene that could have been straight from a Charlie Chaplin movie. We were at a cafeteria and she was behind me. I had found a table and, looking back, saw her engaged in a battle with another tray-carrying diner for passage between two tables. As one stepped right, the other stepped left. After a few minutes of mutual laughter and frustration the two solved their problem with nary a spill. My friend, however, managed to spill a spot of gravy on her dress as soon as she reached the table.

I stopped laughing then, but my friend chuckled on. She told me she would take care of the spot after lunch and admitted the humor of the situation. When we had finished we slipped into a nearby powder room and she showed me a trick that I just can't keep secret. She had pocket packs of the dry cleaner that I mentioned a week or so ago. I didn't even know they made such a product. The spot remover comes in little foil packets, six of them in a plastic pocket holder for $1.29. The cleaner itself is impregnated in a pad and kept from drying out by the sealed foil. As it is a slightly different form of the cleaner it must be used a bit differently but it is as excellent for removing grease-based stains. It even lists typewriter ribbon as one of the stains it removes so would be perfect for office workers. I have decided always to have a pack ready in my purse for emergencies.

Protects Against Rain, Stains and Oil

I have always regretted that many of the fine fabric protectors that can be bought already impregnated into material or clothing cannot be applied at home. One of these protective substances is now available in an aerosol spray. It is a rain and stain repellent that is well-known for its use in ready-made goods. Many items can be protected with it as it claims even to resist oil stains which in some newer fabrics are next to impossible to remove once they are entrenched. The spray comes in two sizes, $2.49 and $3.98. The large can is sufficient to cover one large chair or two adult coats, or three children's coats—the list is a long one. The garment or item is impregnated with the spray. It is quick-drying.

Protection of another kind is given by a spray-on shield that retards damage to clothing caused by perspiration. It is invisible protection for the underarm area that takes such a beating in so many lovely clothes. It protects not only from perspiration damage but from underarm cosmetics, many of which contain chemicals harmful to fabric, and from formation of odor. An aerosol can is $1.69. This product is also good as a protection from soiling, most food, liquid and fruit stains.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where I found these items.

WHY GROW OLD?

Take Some Time Every Day To Learn About Yourself

Don't lose yourself in the shuffle! By this, I do not mean that you should think only in terms of yourself, but once you lose sight of yourself as an individual, vibrant living will be lost to you, and you will not have as much to give to others.

Lowman

Think of yourself as a person, not just as a wife, a mother or a daughter. This is sometimes difficult to do, with all of the obligations, pressures, duties, problems and stresses of daily living. It is also hard to do because our tendency is to live for those we love. Sometimes, however, folks overdo this to such a degree that they never think of themselves. This will boomerang, on you and those you love.

The most rewarding thing in the world is to have a family or a person to love, and to be concerned about them and to make them happy. However, it is not emotionally healthy to live vicariously, only through others.

People are as different as fingerprints, and each human soul has its own characteristics with which to stamp life. All humans have an obligation to do so. Each has its own dignity and inner core of strength. It is a loss to a person, and to those who love her, if this personal signature is lost to life in the confusion of other emotions and myriad duties.

Keeping in touch with yourself will add excitement to life now. It will make your marriage more exciting and you more interesting to your children. It will make you a better citizen and a happier person.

Keeping in touch with yourself will also act as a strong buffer against boredom or loneliness in the future when circumstances change. Your children will not always be with you. With life as it is today they may live far away from you once they leave home. You also may lose the person you love most. How to keep in touch with yourself? Well, I think that just taking time to remember who you are will be a big help. Everyone must have some time alone, if only a short time daily. Perhaps you will have to get up a little earlier before the morning family scramble begins, or stay up a little later, or when you are alone in the house, take a little time, in the midst of your household chores, to get acquainted with yourself.

Investing even once a week in some study, hobby, interest or activity which is yours, individually, is the answer for some. I am thinking especially of those young mothers who are overwhelmed by their love for their husband and children, but are somewhat sunk by the never ending round of household duties and child care. Don't Lose Yourself in the Shuffle!

If you would like to have my free leaflet "Individual Happiness," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY...

Too Much 'Girl Talk' Can Invite Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For the last few years I have been the secretary to an unmarried man, almost young enough to be my son, but not quite. Because he lives alone, I do many personal things for him in addition to my regular secretarial duties.

Last summer we took a European vacation at the same time, and since he is well-acquainted there I was entertained royally by his friends, along with him. Believe me, all of this was perfectly innocent, and it was with my husband's knowledge and approval. But I know there is talk among my co-workers, and little understanding on the part of my friends. Should I ignore the talk, and go on as I have?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: If everything is on the up-and-up, and your husband understands and approves, it appears that your only problem is the "talk." If this is the case, just make sure you aren't inviting the talk—by talking too much yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write when I read about the "creaky" girl nobody wanted to bother with. Did they ever stop to think why she was that way? I was a girl like that. I had an alcoholic father and a mother who didn't care. I was never taught to wash and keep myself clean and neat. The only room in the house with any heat was the kitchen, and we didn't have hot running water, so I wasn't about to take a bath in the kitchen with the whole family looking on.

I didn't have any friends because of my dirty appearance. But two girls in my class took me under their wing. They taught me how to dress and fix myself up. They even helped me get baby-sitting jobs.

They let me come to their houses to take a bath and wash my hair, and they didn't care what people thought. They told me they knew I was a nice girl that needed help. That gave me an incentive to never do anything wrong to make them sorry they gave me their friendship. I have been married for 20 years to a good man, and I have always taught my children never to make fun of anybody because of their appearance.

REFRENDEN IN BERKSHIRE

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "The Troubled Trio" who didn't want that "queer, homely, creaky" girl hanging around trying to be friends with them, prompted me to write this:

A "homely, creaky" girl needs more than anything else to be taken in, given friendship and taught how to dress, to fix her hair, and to use make-up, if her religion and the school allow it.

And I would ask "The Troubled Trio"—the popular

PALM SPRINGS NEWS

"Home Plate" was the Las Flores room of the beautiful El Mirador Hotel on Tuesday night as 600 people welcomed the Los Angeles Angels to Palm Springs for spring training.

Staged by the Palm Springs Chamber of Commerce, the "Welcome Angels" dinner was a sell-out. Bob Hope headed the program and in his usual breezy manner had the crowd rocking with laughter. Charles Farrell, the genial host of the Racquet Club, and Paul Burke, star of the television series Naked City, took their bows.

Ruth Collis, Victoria winner of the T. Eaton Company Sun Break Contest, and myself were guests of Jerry Hunt, general manager of the Palm Springs Chamber of Commerce, and his wife Doris. We were fortunate to be seated at a table with Jim Coates, the tall, rangy pitcher of the Angels.

Marvin Milkes, assistant general manager and Angel vice-president, who is leaving next month to help organize the new American League club in Seattle, had a special welcome for those of us from the Northwest.

From sand to snow in 18 minutes is a fun adventure for any visitor to Palm Springs. Ruth and I had lunch in the sunshine at poolside of the Holiday Inn Riviera where we are staying, and then drove to the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway station where we boarded the cable car to ascend the 8,500 feet to the top of San Jacinto Mountain.

We resisted the temptation to throw snowballs... it was cold up there, but very beautiful.

Senator and Mrs. Norman MacKenzie of Vancouver were on our Western Airlines flight from Vancouver to Palm Springs. They were looking forward to a quiet week at the Oasis Hotel after a rather hectic time in Ottawa.

Ruth and I are being thoroughly spoiled and loving every moment of it. Flowers, fruit and magazines have arrived in our room from the Palm Springs Chamber of Commerce.

We are very happy in our sister city and fully agree with the bumper slogans on every car: PS. I love you.

65 YEARS OF SERVICE

These four members of the 155 Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps (M) represent 65 years of service. They were honored at a recent ceremony during which they were presented with Centennial medals and Canadian Decoration medals. At extreme right is Major J. F. Rowe, commanding officer of the Victoria-based militia company which, last year, was judged the best in Western Canada. With him, left to right, are Sgt. William Hodson, Warrant Officer Phyllis McDougall and Cpl. Ethel Jaggard.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

The next time I'm forced to enlist in the battle of the bulge I'll start armed with my success strategy all mapped out. The only weapons I'll need will be a pair of chopsticks.

This weekend I attended my first Chinese banquet and learned how our Chinese friends keep obesity at bay. I defy anyone to become a Fats without a knife and fork. It demands more exercise to consume a normal intake with a pair of chopsticks than 50 pushups and a swift run around the block!

The banquet took place in the Government Street eatery of Mogy and James Poon. Seated at round tables of 10, 140 people, most of us uninitiated in the art of chopstick chomping, waded through a menu that, at first glance, threatened to turn us into a blimp battalion.

Hardly A Time To Cheat

The guest list was formed of students who take Chinese cooking classes with Lannie Yee in night school, and their friends. Few of us had the temerity to ignore the chopsticks that lay beside our bowl. Actually, there was little choice. The only other utensil was a pretty solid looking china spoon with which we were to consume the soup which started the meal. It was hardly the sort of utensil to be used surreptitiously.

At first glance, the menu appeared to be written by one with a Dickensian love of words, particularly adjectives. Yet, as we worked our way through the nine courses, I found that what I'd considered verbal flourishes were, according to the more informed diners at our table, the actual names of the morsels we were munching.

Start with the soup... chicken crystals twinkling in a pool of bird's nest soup. Fanciful? My dinner partner, who'd lived in China, told me this was actually made from the nests of a certain bird that frequented one area of that country. He couldn't remember the name of the bird but said that it had produced potentates in that region who'd grown prosperous through its home-making chores. If you've never tried this soup, you should. It tastes like good Scotch broth and has the same rib-sticking qualities.

I didn't know quite what to expect, either, when a dish of deep fried prawns under the watchful eyes of dragons, made its appearance. The dragons were not the St. George variety. They were the most delectable of nuts.

Creamed breast of chicken surrounded by deep fried cloud swallows was another item to have my curiosity piqued. Those cloud swallows almost looked as if they were perched for flight. These were a batter pastry, shaped like their namesakes, that literally melted in your mouth.

Each course brought its own artistic surprise. One that failed to make my Must list was bean-filled lotus flowers. These were made of bean curd with a fishy flavor that used to linger on my tongue after I'd received the annual dosage of cod liver oil which my English grandmother was certain would ward off all the dire maladies in the medical journals.

But, even these lotus flowers had their purpose. My travelled partner told me that every Chinese meal is balanced and bean curd is used in order to provide protein.

Science and Saucepans Go Together

Lannie Yee is far from the conventional type of chef. He spends his working days as a scientist with the Pacific Naval Laboratory. He cooks and teaches for fun.

The diners, too, showed that Chinese cooking is not the prerogative of zealous housewives. Many men students were there, including Nick North, manager of the Imperial Inn, dapper in a white modern turtle-neck shirt. He and his wife, Valerie sat at a table with Douglas and Jean Hunter. Nick is taking the advanced cooking course. Does this mean the Inn's kitchen will have a few extras added to its list of menus?

Dr. Stuart Holland, who wields cooking pots at Tuesday night classes, was there with his wife Elizabeth, and son-in-law and daughter, Iain and Sally Hunter.

Surprisingly enough, there were several Chinese cooking students at the banquet, including Ida Wong. She studies at night school because she "likes to eat."

So do I. Even if it takes a little longer to go the full route, Chinese food goes well with my gastric juices, that is, the portion which remains after its mid-air flight from bowl to mouth.

And never having been ecstatic about washing dishes, Chinese cooking has still another advantage. Chopsticks, two bowls, a soup spoon and teacup is all the paraphernalia needed to enjoy a nine-course meal.

With so many things going for it, my next diet date may start sooner than I expected.

WOMAN USES IRON LUNG AT PALACE INVESTITURE

LONDON (AP) — Doris Page went to Buckingham Palace in an iron lung today to get a medal from the Queen.

Wearing a pink jacket to match the coverlet of her bed, Mrs. Page was wheeled before the Queen in a ground-floor reception room to be made a member of the Order of the British Empire.

As the Queen handed over the medal, she glanced anxiously at the iron lung and said: "I hope it's working all right. We've never had anything quite like this before."

Mrs. Page, 42, edits Responant, a paper she founded for the victims of polio and respiratory diseases. She was accompanied by her husband, Kenneth, a local government officer, and her sons, Brian 17, and Andrew, 15.

The award to Mrs. Page was made privately before the general investiture was held with customary court ceremony upstairs.

A motorcycle police escort accompanied Mrs. Page's ambulance on the 60-mile trip from her home in Berkshire.

Guides Plan Tea This Saturday

A demonstration of the techniques of flower arranging will be given when the 25th Victoria Guide Company holds its St. Patrick's Day tea Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Douglas Street Baptist Church Hall, corner of Douglas and Roderick Streets. The Island Florist will present the demonstration. The event will also feature handicrafts and a rummage sale.

Society Plans Open Meeting

The British Columbia Indian Arts and Welfare Society plans to hold an open meeting next Tuesday, designed to encourage membership and acquaint the public with the aims of the group. The meeting will be held in the cafeteria of the Douglas Building at 7:45 p.m.

Among the speakers will be Dr. R. B. Lane, a member of the anthropology department at the University of Victoria; Mrs. A. C. Tate, Chief Philip Paul, Larry Thompson of the Kalsawic group; Col. G. S. Andrews and Miss M. K. Broadhurst.

Corps Will Lay Away Its Flag

This coming Sunday at 2 p.m., St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church will have another flag to add to those that hang from the rafters of the historic church.

In a colorful ceremony, officers and wrenettes of the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps will lay away the Union Jack which was presented to the corps five years ago when the unit was formed. The corps now uses the Maple Leaf as its official colors.

Officials of the Victoria Branch of the Navy League of Canada will also attend the ceremony, as well as former wrenette officers, former wrenettes, parents and other guests.

Following the ceremony, a fifth anniversary party will be held at Rainbow, the Navy League's headquarters at the foot of Robert Street.

Hopes Doused By Hangings

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Hopes for further talks between Britain and Rhodesia on the colony's independence seizure were today virtually extinguished following the executions of two more Negroes in Salisbury Monday.

Rhodesia Legalizes Segregation

SALISBURY (AP)—The Rhodesian government has passed a new law that legalizes segregation.

The act empowers municipalities to provide separate facilities for the different races if considered necessary. As in neighboring South Africa, the decision to enforce segregation in public places is left to the discretion of municipal councils.

The new law means that local councils can deny Negroes, Asians and those of mixed blood the use of such facilities as transportation, swimming pools, bars, hotels, restaurants and movie theatres.

Some consider the new act a watered-down version of South Africa's apartheid law, which forces the races into clearly defined and segregated social streams—most of them well posted with signs reading "whites only" or "non-whites only."

INDEFINITELY

Since Rhodesia declared itself independent of Britain in 1965 the country has been a nominally multi-racial society. But the government of Prime Minister Ian Smith has made it clear the white minority that runs the country will do so indefinitely.

There are 4,000,000 blacks in Rhodesia, 14,000 of mixed blood, 8,000 Asians and about 230,000 whites.

Economic differences tend to keep the races apart, but non-whites have been able to use many facilities enjoyed by whites.

Most hotels, movies and public places exhibit a sign reserving the right to deny admission, and most non-whites stay away from those places. Now that local councils have the right to enforce segregation, some expect a spate of segregation bylaws to be enacted.

The government says the new act is based on a need to protect the family as a unit of society.

Former Printer Here Dies In Arizona

Samuel Victor Bowers, a linotype operator with the Victoria Daily Times from 1906 to 1929, died recently in Phoenix, Arizona.

Born at Wichita, Kansas, Mr. Bowers moved to Seattle with his wife in 1905 and worked for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. He moved to Victoria the following year after seeing a Victoria Times advertisement for a linotype operator.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowers settled in Oak Bay and their two sons, Raymond and Stanley, were educated at Oak Bay public schools. Raymond was also a graduate of Victoria College.

The Bowers family returned to the United States in 1929 and Mr. Bowers worked for the Boston Globe and the Los Angeles Examiner. He retired in 1953 after 60 years' composing room service.

Mr. Bowers is survived by the widow, their two sons and four grandchildren. His ashes were buried in the family grave at Wichita, Kansas.

Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson said in London Monday that the hangings, carried out five days after three other Negroes were executed in defiance of a reprieve from Queen Elizabeth, emphasized the Rhodesian regime's disregard of rule of law.

"In the present circumstances there can be no question of resuming contact with the illegal regime," he said.

And there was no indication here today that "present circumstances" would change.

CONTINUE EXECUTIONS
Observers said it appeared certain that the white-minority government in Salisbury, while adhering to its reprieve Monday of nine condemned Negroes, would go ahead with other executions.

The reprieved men were among more than 100 sentenced to death in Rhodesia for crimes ranging from murder to acts of terrorism.

The two hanged Monday were convicted of murdering a tribal chief.

Four other men condemned to be hanged Monday were given a stay of execution while the government considered their cases.

It is believed more than half the condemned Negroes may be reprieved as the government reviews their cases.

Students Bid To Storm U.K. Embassy

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Students demonstrating against recent executions of Negroes in Rhodesia tried to storm the British Embassy here today, but were dispersed by police.

Students marched on the high commission building chanting "toothless bulldog."

They also waved placards which said, "Hang Smith and Wilson, the murderers," "Preserve rule of law, rather than blood," and "Smith, remember what happened to Verwoerd."

The signs referred to Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia, Britain's Prime Minister Wilson and Hendrik Verwoerd, the assassinated South African premier.

The students were met by Bruce Greatbatch, British deputy high commissioner, but when their leader presented him with the memorandum of protest they tried to break through a police cordon in an attempt to storm the building.

Some scuffled with the police and pelted Greatbatch with coins and rolled pieces of paper before police dispersed them.

Progress Negligible In Spy Ship Talks

SEOUL (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Kyu-ha Choi of South Korea said today little progress had been reported in American efforts to obtain the release of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo, seized by the North Korean government Jan. 23.

Maj.-Gen. Gunnar Smedmark, outgoing Swedish delegate to the Korean Armistice Supervisory Commission, was quoted today as saying he felt the Pueblo's crew might have been

Provincial Chiefs Ousted In South Vietnam Shakeup

Pedicabs Undercover For Cong

SAIGON (Reuters)—Salon police sources said today authorities were investigating the disappearance of many of the men who drive the city's pedicabs.

Security men were checking the possibility that many of the drivers were connected with Viet Cong organizations, the sources said.

No statistics were available on the number of pedicab drivers still on the streets in the wake of the Viet Cong lunar new year offensive.

But it now is often difficult to hire pedicabs which are the cheapest mode of public transportation in the capital. And most of the drivers appear to be older men.

Police source said many drivers in the 18-35 age group disappeared in the Viet Cong offensive.

In January, before the offensive began, more than 8,000 drivers were registered in Saigon and its heavily-populated suburb of Gia Dinh.

Cuba Lacks Currency

HAVANA (Reuters)—A severe shortage of foreign currency has forced Cuba to delay signing contracts for the purchase of equipment from Western European companies, well-informed sources here said Monday. Cuba's strained financial condition is caused by its low sugar harvest after a severe drought last summer, the sources said.

SAIGON (UPI)—A colonel and seven lieutenant colonels today took command in eight of South Vietnam's 44 provinces in President Nguyen Van Thieu's biggest local governmental shakeup to date, according to government sources.

They said Monday a variety of reasons were given for ousting the province chiefs but most were thought to have been removed because of corruption and inefficiency.

All the province chiefs are army officers who hold military and civil powers with a standing roughly equivalent to a U.S. state governor.

The sources said one of these being replaced was Col. Phan Van Khoa, the mayor of Hue and chief of Thua Thien province. Khoa said he hid in the rafters of a house for eight days while North Vietnamese officers right under him directed communist operations in the ancient imperial capital. The government sources said Khoa had a "mental breakdown" from the

TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Crucial Work Comes Before the Planting

By JACK BEASTALL
The work we do before we plant counts more towards success than anything we can do afterwards.

This is particularly true in the case of clematis. Their roots go deep, so the deeper we can break the soil, the better. Eighteen inches is not too much, but often a mighty chore for the gardener.

The old subsoil should be cast aside and the bottom of the hole covered with three or four inches of brick and mortar rubble, coarse gravel, small stones, or pieces of broken clay flowerpots.

If the clematis is to go against a wall, dig the hole about two feet out from the foundation. We can always peg down the stem just under the soil as we train it back to the wall, and the under soil piece of stem will make roots, which is all to the good.

While drainage is needed, a clematis also needs a soil to hold moisture in summer. It likes a cool, moist rootrun while growing.

So we must put a good soil mixture on top of the drainage material, one containing reasonably fertile topsoil, plenty of humus from well-rotted barnyard manure or compost, and coarse sand to hold the mass open. Exact quantities of each depends on the heaviness of the soil.

BELOW SOIL
To this can be added a four-inch pot of bonemeal to a bushel of mixture, more or less. Put some of the mixture over the drainage material, then remove the clematis from its container and set the ball of roots deep enough for the top of the ball to be about two inches below soil level.

Fill in with remaining mixture, pressing it firmly against the rootball, and pour a pailful of water around the roots slowly before topping the planting hole to surrounding soil level.

OPEN HOUSING, ANTI-RIOT PROVISIONS

Civil Rights Measure Passed by U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives has received a Senate-passed civil rights bill and an appeal from President Johnson to enact the measure that includes landmark open-housing and anti-riot provisions.

House leaders met Monday night, a few hours after the Senate passed the bill 71 to 20, to map plans for getting the measure through to the president. All 17 Southern Democrats voted against it.

The House originally passed the administration bill as a measure concerned only with providing federal protection to Negroes and civil rights workers.

But after seven weeks of Senate debate, the new version provides:

—A ban on discrimination in the sale or rental of all housing except owner-occupied single-family homes sold without the aid of a broker, or portions of dwellings sheltering up to four families provided the owner retains residence. This would mean about 80 per cent of the country's housing would be covered by 1970.

OUTLAW INTERFERENCE

—Federal law against interference with Negroes and others in the exercise of specified rights, including voting, jury service and use of public accommodations.

—A federal law against crossing a state line and committing other acts to organize or aid in a riot and against involvement in the use or manufacture of guns and explosives for use in a riot.

Johnson hailed the Senate vote and said:

"I believe the members of the House—having once said that every family has the right to the kind of shelter it desires and can afford; having once said that Americans should be protected in the exercise of their basic rights; and having often expressed their will to curb violence in our cities—will reaffirm their support for the policies contained in this measure."

MAY SEEK COMPROMISE

The House must accept the Senate changes or seek a conference to reach a compromise version. The House also could delay action altogether.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.) of the House judiciary committee, and House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma met for 90 minutes Monday night with Speaker John W. McCormack on parliamentary manoeuvres aimed at winning enactment.

Celler said he would request unanimous consent to accept the Senate amendments, but it did not appear the House would go along with that.

SPEAKERS PROCEED TO FINALS

James Coates won the fourth and final preliminary round in the golden gavel speaking contest Monday night at the University of Victoria.

A member of Beaver Toastmasters Club, he gave his winning address on "Inhumanity."

Runner-up in the round was Jack Clark, a member of Camosun Toastmasters, speaking on Tourists.

Ted Cressy, of Craft Toastmasters, was awarded third place from the field of eight contestants for his address, "The New Immigrant, the Dodger."

Mr. Coates and Mr. Clark will proceed to the final night of judging for the golden gavel award March 20 at 8 p.m. in Room 158 of the Social Sciences Building at Uvic.

Store Worried Cafe Becoming Hippie Haven

By DON VIPOND

Officials of a downtown department store find themselves on the horns of a civil rights dilemma.

The problem is centred on the Olympic Room, basement restaurant at The Bay. It has turned into a meeting ground for a motley collection of hippie-type youngsters.

The long-haired set, some in weird costumes and caps, congregate in the restaurant after school each day. But it is on Friday evenings and Saturday afternoons that they arrive by the score, plugging aisles and crowding tables.

They mill about and linger by the hour. They annoy older people and store officials say figures prove they are hurting business.

Despite rumors or predictions that the gatherings are screening at least some drug trading, the youngsters when questioned argue they are not hurting anyone.

The attitude of many store customers has been:

"Throw them out!"

Bill 33 Heading For Status Of Best-Seller?

The Government Printing Bureau has run out of copies of Bill 33.

But Queen's Printer Albert Sutton says this is not unusual and more copies will be available when the new labor legislation receives second and third readings in the legislature.

He said normally only a limited number of first-reading bills are printed although more than usual were printed this time. He had no figures.

Mr. Sutton said all members of the legislature and the press have copies and anyone can see one at the house.

But any store's management is understandably reluctant to adopt this policy for fear of bad publicity, worse even than the hippies provide.

And no one-to-date has been able to put their finger on a law which appears to cover ejecting them.

Lloyd Klaassen, The Bay's protection supervisor, says the civil rights dilemma boils down to this:

"At what point do the civil rights of one group get curtailed because they are interfering with the civil rights of another group?"

There have been times when you could almost draw a line through the restaurant, he says, with the crowd of youngsters on the one side and peeved adult customers on the other.

A confrontation Saturday afternoon may lead to some sort of understanding.

When about 50 young people were invited to leave the restaurant, they trooped up to the fourth floor where they staged a sit-in alongside the executive offices.

Their complaint — discrimination.

"They didn't elaborate," said Mr. Klaassen.

Store personnel and operations manager John Jellison suggested a small delegation be formed to discuss the matter. It was to meet him today.

Recently Mr. Klaassen has tried moving among the youngsters, putting the store's case and probing their attitudes.

Sometimes he gets lippy answers but he says he has also found many of the young people understand the store's position and admit it has a right to be concerned.

Maybe the answer lies in what one teen-ager told him.

"Well, we have to get some outfit with a few thousand bucks behind it before we're going to get a youth centre."

Legion's Farewell On Friday

The Royal Canadian Legion will give a farewell banquet for Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at Hotel Vancouver Friday at 6:30 p.m.

"More than 500 veterans from 182 branches, representing 53,000 members, will attend."

"We want to say thank you to Major-General Pearkes for the magnificent job he has done and the interest he has always shown in Legion activities," said an official of the Legion's Pacific Command.

"His Honor made a habit of dropping in at Legion branches wherever his duties carried him, with the result he is probably an honorary member of more branches than anyone in Canada."

"Some have been named after him."

An old friend of the lieutenant-governor — Brigadier Jim Delanne — will fly out from Dominion Command, Ottawa, to give the testimonial speech at the dinner.

Among the guests will be two fellow VCs, Lt. Col. Cecil Merritt and A. E. (Smoky) Smith; Legion Dominion president Ron McBeath; provincial president David Hunter and Attorney-General Robert Bonner, a Canadian Army veteran.

SYMPOSIUM PLANNED

School Writers Discuss Works

Three high school girls from Greater Victoria will discuss their own literary works before an audience of their peers next month.

They will be among 80 students from secondary schools throughout B.C. gathering at the University of Victoria for the second annual Humanities and Science Symposium.

The free-wheeling discussion sessions April 19 and 20 are sponsored by the university and the IBM Corporation.

The symposium will offer a platform for 28 leading students from senior grades across the province. Before an audience of teachers and fellow students they will discuss their work in a wide variety of fields.

Chosen locally to speak:

● Charlotte Beauchemin of Mount View Secondary, on her essay, All the Stage is a World.

● Karen Orton of St. Ann's Academy, on her story, The Last Visit.

● Willy Wilson of Esquimalt Senior Secondary, on her play, Birds in a Boneyard.

Students completing grades 11 and 12 in B.C. were invited through their principals to submit a paper on a subject of their choice or examples of their work in the arts. The best of 163 papers submitted will be presented by their authors.

In the discussion groups that will hear the papers are 52 runners-up, attending as observers and also having their expenses paid. They will be joined by 26 teachers who sponsored projects among their own pupils.

ART DISPLAYS

Students will come from 47 schools, from Fernie in the southeast corner of the province to Terrace and Kitimat near the Alaskan border.

Papers will touch on many subjects taught at the university level. One paper is entitled "Being: From the Viewpoint of an Existentialist." Others deal with scientific subjects, Indian and Eskimo cultures, French-Canadian separatism and international affairs.

Two art displays by students will be on view.

As well as discussing their own material, those attending the symposium will hear four special lectures and see something of university life. Sessions were arranged for the Easter vacation to permit out-of-town students to attend.

Among students chosen as observers are Felicity Earnshaw and Suzanne Velay of St. Ann's Academy, Deborah Wright from Mount Douglas senior secondary and James Cuthbert from Edward Milne secondary school.

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts Monday to: Sheila P. Armitage, 610 Beaver Lake Road, from Harold F. Armitage, 130 Hampton Road. They were married at Victoria in 1947.

Margaret M. Nagel, 2014 Chaucer Street, from Richard A. Nagel, 3953 Helen Road. They were married at Victoria in 1949.

Shirley E. McKee, 451 Agnes Road, Winnipeg, from John D. McKee, Port Renfrew. They were married at Winnipeg in 1950.

Margaret C. Baylis, 2010 Ferndale Road, from Frank W. Baylis of Victoria. They were married here in 1937.

Richard D. Hawkes, 2713 Cavendish Road, from Evelyn L. Hawkes, 816 Condon Avenue. They were married at Victoria in 1940.

John H. Sutton, 311 Dixton Road, Weston, Ont., from Penelope D. Sutton, Boston Bar, B.C. They were married at Comox in 1963.

Riots Happen Every Day!

A riot at Douglas and Yates? Demonstrators dropping their placards in front of the Legislative Buildings and running to dance on the lawn instead?

Maybe that doesn't sound like the Victoria you know, but that's how it is in a four-minute film prepared by two University of Victoria students.

Tom Paul and Jeff Green made the film with the help of "a circle of friends."

It was shown as part of an evening of short films Saturday night at a Parkville symposium for students, professors and guests.

The silent film, synchronized with a record, also showed people passing around a suspicious-looking cigarette, followed by a person gazing ruefully from behind bars.

Problems making a film in Victoria?

Not really, according to co-director Paul.

"Except we had to film the riot scene at Douglas and Yates twice because the public didn't react when the actors went running and screaming down the sidewalk."

"They just went about their business as if it happened every day in Victoria."

NUNS APPEAL TO POPE TO MODERNIZE CLOTHES

LOS ANGELES (AP) The Immaculate Heart of Mary sisters will appeal to Pope Paul for permission to wear ordinary clothes.

"If we're stopped," said Sister Mary Mark, vice-president of Immaculate Heart College, "then we and other orders have been wasting our time."

About 500 of the 540 sisters in the order have voted to appeal an order from the Sacred Congregation for Religious in Rome that they halt their modernization experiments.

In a letter, Rome instructed the nuns to adopt a "uniform habit," attend mass together at least once a day, perform their traditional work in schools and colleges and accept the authority of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre.

EXPO DEFICIT FORECAST TO REACH $295 MILLION

OTTAWA (CP) — Expo 67 is expected to show a deficit of $295,000,000, the Commons was told Monday.

Of the deficit, the federal government will have to pay 50 per cent, the province of Quebec 37½ per cent, and the City of Montreal 12½ per cent.

Trade Minister Winters said in his reply: "Expo brought large financial net benefits to Canada. Therefore, on a national basis, it was a good investment of funds although, as an isolated project, there was a substantial deficit."

COOL HAND LUKE

Paul Newman
Capitol Theatre

Luke's rebellion against society seems rather shapeless and lacking in purpose but, with his usual cocky resilience, Paul Newman invests the character with charm, humanity and a certain peculiar dignity.

In his capable hands, Luke becomes an intriguing but rather mystifying figure—a simple man who first falls foul of the law and is then mechanically destroyed by it.

The film implies that society in general makes heroes and just as easily breaks them. So it is that Luke—a man with all the makings of a hero—is sent to prison for two years for knocking the tops off parking meters during a drunken brawl.

For one of this temperament, prison should prove unbearable. But Luke plays it cool and eventually wins over his most hostile fellow prisoners by refusing to knuckle under to the sadistic guards.

The prisoners adopt him as their leader after he gets involved in a fist fight with inmate George Kennedy and, though terribly beaten, refuses to quit.

Then one day Luke receives a telegram that his mother has died. She is his last contact with the world beyond bars and he cracks under the emotional strain. Wandering off into fantasy, he engages in some rather unconvincing monologues with a God in whom he professes not to believe.

A week later he breaks out of jail but is quickly recaptured. Again and again he tries to escape. He becomes a joy to the prisoners, who get a vicarious thrill out of his various flings for freedom. But, when the jailers beat and overwork Luke until he grovels for mercy, the inmates turn away from him.

Director Stuart Rosenberg uses the brutalized prison guards as a personification of evil. But there is some rather heavy-handed Christian symbolism in which Luke is shown in crucified positions and this seems out of style with the rest of the film.

Strother Martin is chillingly horrible as the prison camp chief and there is a fierce portrayal by a prison guard who never speaks, but whose ever-ready rifle and dark glasses symbolize what is wrong and brutal in our society today.

Disney's Last Big Dream Will Soon Become a Reality

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(third in a series)

LOS ANGELES — Walt Disney's last big dream before he died was a university to be devoted to all the creative and performing arts. He envisioned a college-type, professional institute embracing schools of music, painting, sculpture, theatre, fashion-designing, cartooning, ceramics and the various creative phases of film-making.

The dream is fast becoming a reality. On a recent visit to the Disney studios I saw a scale model of the California University of Arts which is soon to be built on a 60-acre site in the orange-growing city of Valencia—32 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

GROUND BREAKING

The ground-breaking site is scheduled for March 26, and construction will begin soon after.

As usual, Disney put a stricture on his latest creation. He ruled that no man or woman must ever be "too old" to attend.

"Anyone who has the urge to create, or who wishes to take a refresher course in any form of creative art, must be considered."

True, Disney did not suggest that old-timers should be admitted free; but various foundations will assist young people of proven talent who wish to enter the California University of Arts.

Disney was never a believer in something for nothing. In early manhood, he struggled hard for a living and the huge fortune he acquired was won by hard work, enterprise and imagination.

'GREATEST GIFT'

"Imagination," he said, "is God's greatest gift to man. And once any human enterprise lacks imagination it will die."

"Disneyland was built on imagination, and so long as there is imagination in the world, it must be subject to change.

"When it stops changing, it will be dead."

Disney applied much the same philosophy to his California University of Arts. He saw it as a group of terraced pavilions, rising from a tessellated courtyard, with floor-to-ceiling windows, glass roofs, assorted rock gardens and a surrounding border of orange trees.

"This is a beginning," he said. "It looks good to me but it must always be subject to change and improvement. My present aim is to provide a place where artistic talent can be developed. But there must always be change and improvement."

Mickey Mouse was created in 1927, and his personality first appeared in a silent cartoon film entitled Plane Crazy.

Before the cartoon could be released, the talkies burst on the movie screen and Mickey made his screen debut in Steamboat Willie—the world's first sound cartoon.

Perhaps for that reason cartooning and animated film-making are to be taught at the California University of Arts.

MORE VISITORS

Foreign visitors to Italy rose 2.8 per cent in 1967 with the total number of visitors entering the country last year being 27,500,000.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Roger Young, age 14, of Butler, Pennsylvania, for his question:

What is meant by a variable star?

The astronomers of ancient Arabia noticed that a certain star changed in brilliance every few nights. Because of its odd behavior they named it Algol, the demon star. This star, still using the name Algol and still varying its brilliance, can be seen in the fall constellation, Perseus. For two and a half days Algol shines bright and steady. Then for a period of nine hours the light of the demon star is dimmed. Algol is merely one type of variable star and there are many others like it. In a telescope it looks like one star, but actually it is a binary pair of stars orbiting around each other.

In 1593, a Dutch astronomer noted a bright star near the Pleiades. Several years later this star was studied more closely and named Mira, the Wonderful. The brilliance of Mira varies in periods of about 11 months. By 1844, 18 variable stars had been listed and in the next 40 years, more than 200 more were added to the list. Then the study of variable stars began in earnest. Astronomers learned that though some were eclipsing binaries, others, like Mira, were pulsating stars that actually swell and shrink, dim and flare up at regular or irregular intervals.

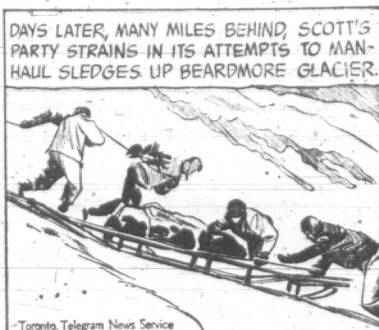

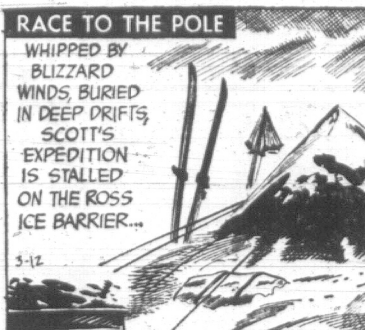

We tend to think that astronomical work of this type should be left to professional astronomers. But in the field of variable stars, much basic work has been done by the AAVSO—the American Association of Variable Star Observers. And most AAVSO members are devoted amateur astronomers. Their observations have made it possible to identify and understand many variable stars, both in our Galaxy and the vast reaches of space beyond.

Pulsating Star

When a likely variable star is reported, the professional astronomers get busy with telescopes and cameras, spectroscopes and photoelectric cells, thermocouples and an assortment of other specialized equipment. The fluctuation period of the newcomer is timed. Its period may be a few minutes, a few hours or days or even a few years. If it is a pulsating star, measurements are taken of the variabilities in its size and magnitude. The newcomer is then classified in one of more than a dozen different categories of variable stars.

One of the earliest variables to be found was in the constellation Cepheus, near the Big Dipper, and stars of the same type are called Cepheid variables. They are giant and super-giant stars that blaze and dim on schedule at regular intervals. These stars are yardsticks used to measure celestial distances, even to outer galaxies beyond the Milky Way.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: In raising a kitten and puppy together we have observed the puppy learns to respond to our commands much quicker. Doesn't this tend to prove the old belief that a dog is much smarter than a cat?—K.V.

DEAR K.V.: Not necessarily. It does prove, though, that commanding a cat can be a frustrating experience. Dogs are, generally, much more anxious to please and, consequently, try harder.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We were crushed the other night when a neighbor told us we ruined our cat when we had her spayed. Along with the dire consequences she said it will have on her personality, she mentioned the fact that Pooky, a pedigreed Persian, can no longer be considered a pedigreed because of the operation! A friend today said she never heard of this, so I would like your comments to help us clarify it all.—N.K.

DEAR N.K.: You can rest easy on all counts. Most important, the ovario-hysterectomy (spay) won't change a cat's personality, except in very rare instances. (If there is a change, it is usually for the better, particularly in those cats whose cystic ovaries have converted them into nymphomaniacs.) Secondly, while Pooky has obviously lost her ability to propagate pedigreed Persians, she still remains one. Removing ovaries and uterus prevents progeny, but can't eliminate ancestry.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is there anything wrong with a budgie who has a droopy tail? My own little bird has had this problem ever since he was young. If this is a sign of illness, I might just as well find out about it as worry all the time.—U.B.

DEAR U.B.: It's always wise to take prompt action when an illness is suspected. Early diagnosis, with treatment if required, keeps minor problems minor, and may prove lifesaving if, indeed, a major illness is involved. Fortunately for your bird, this condition is perhaps not an illness at all. More likely it's an hereditary trait and little can be done about it, anyway.

DEAR DR. MILLER: In spite of our trying over the years, our cocker, Jamie, simply hates to travel, even around the block, unless it's on his own four feet. Soon we will be moving more than a thousand miles to our new home and wonder what will be the best way to get him there. Is it better to ship him by air or should we take him in the car where at least he won't be separated from us?—K.A.

DEAR K.A.: Apparently he isn't going to enjoy it either way, so why not pick the quickest? In shipping Jamie by air, I'd recommend the following: (1) Ship by air express. This has priority over air freight so he's less likely to get bounced before flight time. (2) Be sure the crate is sturdy, of adequate size and provides sufficient ventilation. The water pan should be easily reached yet reasonably secured. (3) Arrange to pick him up at the incoming airport and be sure to request notification as soon as he arrives (regardless of the hour). (4) Call the doctor ahead of time to arrange for health certificate and possibly a rabies vaccine if he hasn't already had one. The doctor will probably recommend a tranquilizer for Jamie, this to be given just before the flight.

RUSK TELLS SENATORS:

Bomb Halts Not Helping

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said today he can offer no present hope that Hanoi is interested in a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam war.

He also balked, despite heavy pressure from Senator J. W. Fulbright, at pledging consultation with Congress prior to a presidential decision on whether to send more U.S. troops to Vietnam.

There have been reports President Johnson is considering sending up to 200,000 additional men. A total of 525,000 now is authorized.

Rusk told the Senate foreign relations committee: "There is room for indignation over the repeated rejection by Hanoi of even the smallest step toward peace."

Rusk commented in his second day of testimony before the committee, headed by Fulbright, a critic of the Johnson administration's Vietnam policy.

Rusk told the committee: "I cannot lead you to hope that we see at the present time any clear interest by Hanoi in a peaceful settlement in contrast to their persistent efforts to take South Vietnam."

He said the North Vietnamese government at Hanoi had rejected, among other approaches, proposals for a mutual de-escalation without formal negotiations.

"We have deliberately held our hand in the bombing of the North" at times in attempts to bring about an easing of the military effort, Rusk said, but he noted no results were forthcoming.

LOOKING AHEAD

The idea, he said, was to expand gradually the area of de-escalation. He called it "peace by infiltration."

Fulbright said the conflict had arrived "at a crucial turning point." He demanded consultation before the president makes a final decision.

"What I want to talk about is the exact precise plans you have on escalation," Fulbright said. He spoke while presiding over the second day of questioning of Rusk by the Senate foreign relations committee, which he heads.

Rusk said President Johnson has not made a final decision.

War Gets Vote Test Today

From Reuters-AP
CONCORD, N.H. (CP) — New Hampshire voted today in the first 1968 presidential primary, widely viewed here as a referendum on President Johnson's Vietnam war policy. Voting was expected to be complete in most of the 302 polling stations by 8 p.m. EST (5 p.m. PST).

Main focus was on the Democratic party primary, in which Vietnam war critic Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota based virtually his entire campaign on opposition to Johnson's handling of the war.

The first trickle of ballots, from the ski country on the White Mountains, sent McCarthy and Republican Richard Nixon off ahead.

JETLINER HIJACKED, FLOWN TO HAVANA

MIAMI (UPI) — A San Francisco-to-Miami jetliner with 58 persons aboard was hijacked early today and forced to fly to Havana.

The federal aviation administration later reported that Cuban officials said the National Airlines DC8, Flight 28, was taking aboard fuel at Havana Airport to return to Miami.

No injuries were reported.

The man who hijacked the plane was identified as Lawrence Rhodes, wanted for kidnapping and robbery in West Virginia.

QUAKE TRIGGERS SLIDE, 260 KILLED IN VILLAGE

KINSHASA, The Congo (Reuters) — About 260 persons were killed in a landslide, caused by earth tremors, that swept away the eastern Congolese village of Kazipa, Radio Kinshasa said today.

The Congolese news agency reported the disaster occurred Sunday night near the Kivu provincial capital of Bukavu, more than 1,000 miles east of Kinshasa.

The village was swept away some time during the night, it said.

WARSAW RIOTING

Students Sack Culture Centre

(Times News Services)

WARSAW — The debris of rioting littered Warsaw streets today after students and Polish militia clashed for seven hours Monday in the worst riots since 1957.

In the third outbreak of disorder in four days, thousands of young demonstrators sacked a culture ministry building in central Warsaw Monday night, smashing windows and wielding broken furniture as weapons to battle militiamen.

The headquarters of the Polish Communist party was one target of the demonstrators who fought running battles with police on downtown streets.

Party workers watched from windows as the students hurled rocks, sticks and bottles at police ringing the building and shouted "Gestapo!", "Democracy!", "Freedom!" and "Constitution!"

Police finally drove the demonstrators—estimated at 10,000—away with tear gas, rubber truncheons and a water cannon.

The Polish news agency PAP said the militia seized about 300 persons Monday.

It claimed an identity check revealed that only about 30 of those held were students. The remainder were what the agency described as "hooligan elements, persons without steady employment, and numerous arrivals from localities in the vicinity of Warsaw."

It said 27 militiamen, eight volunteer auxiliary police and about 15 social activists were injured in the clashes.

Similar trouble Friday and Saturday left 58 persons injured.

The unrest began with the government's closing in January of a 19th century classic Polish play about the Czarist oppression of Poland. About 200 students demonstrated then and two later were expelled from Warsaw University.

'Naval Jack' New Flag For Warships

OTTAWA (CP) — A new naval jack has been approved for Canadian warships, the defence department announced today.

The jack, smaller than the national flag, flies from a jackstaff on the bow of a warship. The national flag flies from the ensign staff on the stern.

The new jack is a white flag incorporating Canada's flag in the upper quarter next to the hoist or staff, with the naval crown, fouled anchor and eagles combined in dark blue on the fly.

Gen. Jean-V. Allard, chief of the defence staff, will present the first new jack to the fleet in a ceremony on board the aircraft carrier Bonaventure during the annual winter exercises in the Caribbean.

Until 1965, Canadian warships flew the blue ensign as the jack showing the union flag in the upper quarter next to the hoist and the shield of Canada's coat of arms in the fly. Subsequently the Canadian flag was used also as a jack.

The jack is normally flown by ships in harbor during the daytime. It is also flown when a warship is under way and dressed with masthead flags for ceremonial occasions, flying the flag of royalty, or escorting a warship that has royalty on board.

Use of a jack is widespread among navies of the world. When warships and merchant ships looked much alike they flew the same ensign, the jack was flown exclusively by warships.

Three Fishermen Feared Drowned

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Several boats were called in and a land search was organized today for three men feared drowned after they failed to return from a fishing trip on Lower Arrow Lake.

On the trip were Peter Vnevashonoff, 30; Leslie Lampard, 40; and Paul Plotnikoff, 29, all of Castlegar. Their overturned boat was found Monday on the north shore of the lake.

Gold Buying Zooms Again In Europe

Purchasers Ignore Bank Move

LONDON (CP) — A renewed gold rush built up in Europe's bullion markets today, signalling an apparent failure of international efforts to hold down demand.

Demand in Paris set a high for the year.

Zurich, London and Rome reported heavy sales approaching last week's high level, but still below the crisis rate of November and December following Britain's devaluation of the pound from $2.80 to $2.40 U.S. and $2.60 Canadian.

Paris sales included 10 tons of 2.2-pound ingots, gold coins, and 40 27.5-pound bars. This compared with the 1968 high of eight tons.

London dealers described demand as extremely high. One market source said the turnover today was likely to equal the daily levels of the big scramble for bullion last week.

In an attempt to beat the gold speculators and restore faith in the U.S. dollar, Western central banks Sunday renewed a pledge to go on supporting the price of gold at $35 an ounce.

The move brought a temporary respite early Monday but dealers said demand increased rapidly later in the day. One report said the turnover Monday may have reached 40 to 50 tons—about the same as an average day last week, although considerably less than a big wave of gold-buying Friday.

Demand continued to grow this morning as orders poured into London from many parts of the world, dealers said.

The day's total was believed to have been more than 25 tons. The price at the fixing today was 293 shillings 9½ pence, up three pence. The dollar parity, however, eased ¼ cent to 35.19.

EBB CONTINUES

A statement Sunday in Basel, Switzerland, by central bankers of seven member countries of the gold pool also failed to restore confidence in paper currencies, which has ebbed since devaluation of the pound in November.

Sterling remained weak in the London foreign exchange market today, with the rate against the U.S. dollar hovering around $2.3964—well below the parity level $2.40.

There was also a notable lack of buyers for forward pounds bought for delivery some time ahead—reflecting continued uncertainty about the world monetary situation.

The scramble for bullion brought lustre back to gold mining stocks on the stock exchange which fell back sharply Monday after the Basel statement.

After opening firm today, many issues showed extensive gains as demand built up.

As the heavy demand for gold continued, London dealers were asking where the private buyers were finding the cash to go on buying, and how much longer

Grits Solve Mini-Crisis On Tax Bill

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A third attempt will be made today by the Liberal minority government to get parliamentary approval of an income tax bill, after its second version of the measure was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

He had ordered the government to withdraw the tax bill on the grounds it too closely resembled the income tax measure defeated by the combined opposition on February 19.

The speaker said to proceed with the new bill then before the house would force members of Parliament to "take a decision which in part would be inconsistent with a decision taken earlier."

They had already defeated an income tax bill last month. If the house now voted in favor of a similar measure it would in effect be "reversing itself."

Describing it as a "minor setback" Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp moved quickly.

A special session of cabinet was called for the dinner hour Monday night.

Decisions were made to delete the sections of the new bill which were identical to the bill defeated in February and leave only the clauses which differed from the old bill.

The revised version of the bill was introduced at 8 p.m. Monday and received first reading. It came up for second reading today.

The tax provisions of the bill remain intact.

The three per cent surtax on individual income and on corporate income taxes are not altered by the new version of the bill. The stepped up collections of corporation income taxes remains unchanged.

JEERED PACIFIST BECAME HERO IN KHE SANH BATTLE

Open Heart Surgery in Bunker Saves 'Dead' Marine

By JOHN T. WHEELER

KHE SANH (AP) — Jonathan M. Spicer became a marine yet he hated war and refused to kill. He received the jeers of fellow marines, then became a hero. He was counted clinically dead, yet he lives today.

He was clinically dead, field

doctors said, when hit while helping wounded 100 yards from Khe Sanh's main aid station. There, doctors fought to save his life with open heart surgery in a badly lighted, underground bunker.

Pte. Spicer, 19, of Miami, Fla., son of a former Methodist minister who resigned because of ill health, once was an outcast at this base manned by marines in South Vietnam's northwest corner.

Because of his feelings about war and killing he was assigned to the team of medical corpsmen. In that job he became a hero. Repeatedly he shielded fallen men with his own body when enemy fire came in.

His father, William Spicer, now a junior high school teacher, said in Miami that Jonathan was "a gentle boy who even now reads his Bible every day."

"What no one realized was that he was thoroughly unselfish and wouldn't hesitate to put himself in danger," said Lieut. Edward Feldman, a medical officer from Forest Hills, N.Y.

Spicer got hit in a situation he didn't have to be in. Men were having trouble loading wounded onto a medical evacuation helicopter because of shelling.

Spicer saw it but an officer called to him from a bunker: "Get the hell back in here."

Nevertheless, the young private turned and ran to the helicopter. He arrived just as a shell burst among the wounded men and the litter bearers. Spicer was hit in the heart, face and legs.

In the medical bunker, Lieut. John Magilligan of Brooklyn began to work on Spicer.

"He died real fast," said Magilligan. "His heart stopped. So did his breathing."

They're havin' more trouble leavin' the income tax than we'll hev payin' it.

stretchers which served as an operating table, reaching into the opening of Spicer's chest and began massaging the heart.

The heart began to beat again.

Finnegan next put his finger into the small hole in Spicer's heart, stopping the blood flow. Then the doctor took two stitches in the heart wall, withdrew the finger and drew the stitches tight.

He added a third stitch and the wound in the heart was closed.

The heartbeat was strong, breathing was normal, blood pressure was 92. It was remarkable, that's all remarkable," Finnegan said.

In all, 15 minutes had passed from shellburst to final stitch.

Arthur Mayse

Why this should be, I don't know, but after a few days away from the machine that dominates my working hours, it is necessary for me to learn to type again. So here we go, with numerous stumbles and X-ing-out, into a survey of Victoria and environs as a March tourist finds them.

The visitor's name is Leone Edgar, Montreal is her city, and like most Montrealers, she wouldn't trade it.

"But when I go on a trip," says she, "I'm interested in what other cities have to offer. The last thing I want is to find a replica of my home surroundings."

Armed with this sensible attitude and a ready camera, Mrs. Edgar has been sampling our scenery, climate and auxiliary attractions for the past week.

She had not expected so large an island. Also, she was surprised to find "north woods" scenery in a climate so much softer than she associates with evergreen forests.

Victoria, "a very attractive city," has claimed most of her time. She came to it with the usual preconceived image—"charming, quaint and distinctly English"—and spent most of a day trying to match the legend with the fact.

"English? her verdict runs, 'No, and not quite, either. Charming? Yes, with lovely sea views wherever one goes. And with spring still so far away at home, it's been wonderful to find flowers in bloom. I don't know how many pictures I've taken of your flowering trees.'"

(Observe her, sturdily planted in mid-street with a Montrealer's disregard of traffic, trying to catch an entire block of deep pink Japanese plum in the viewfinder.)

Like most visitors, she wanted to see Butchart Gardens.

My wife and I thought the gardens might be closed this early in the season. But they're open year-round, we learned; and from mid-October to April 1, the proprietors, in a notably amiable gesture, decline to charge an admission fee.

Our guest found few flowers, but even without them, the gardens were handsome enough to keep her camera busy.

The several restaurants she lunched or dined at pleased her, although she felt that we could follow coastal California's lead and make much more of our seafood. With so many boats in evidence, she was puzzled at the absence of a meal-serving fisherman's wharf. (As I am: we're missing a good bet there.)

Her summation of Victoria: "A mild, quiet leisurely, very pleasant city, and one I would have liked to live in when I was younger. But—with a shrug and a smile—"I'm in love with Montreal."

On Sunday night, I settled down to view "The Wild Heart," a Walt Disney production that features Victoria actors against what purports to be a Vancouver Island background.

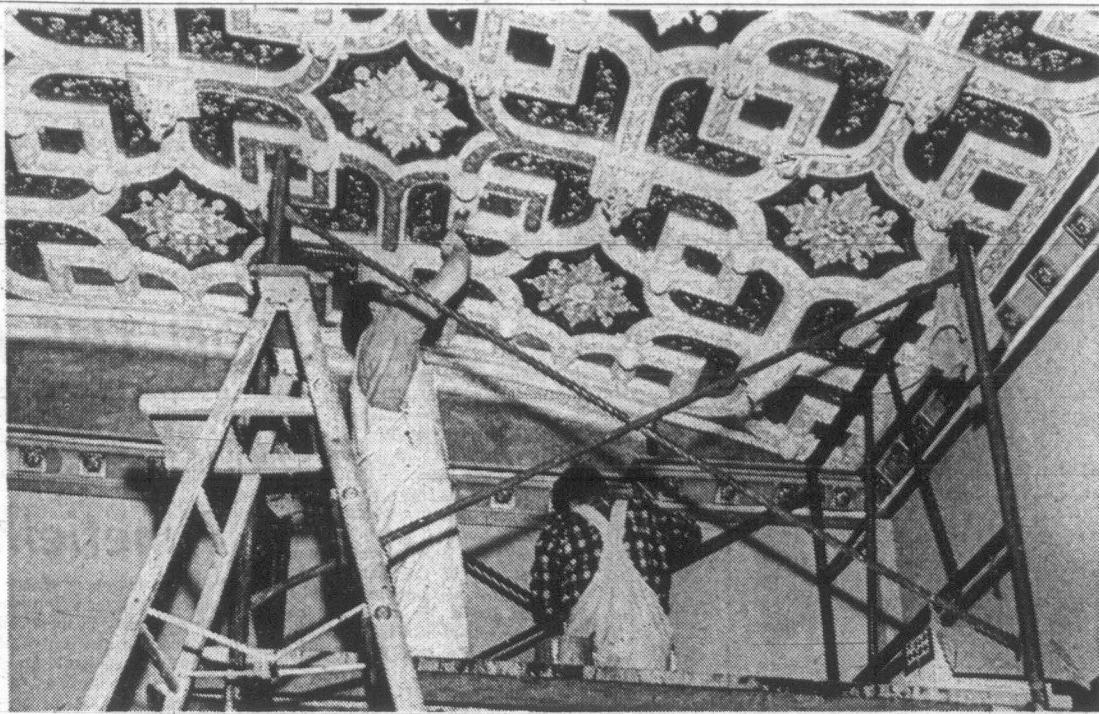

As a Disney fan from away back, I was prepared to enjoy this film, and... up to a point... I did.

The acting was competent, the scenery pleasing, and the filming well up to the Disney standard. But... they... what goes on here, anyhow? Boy and girl from prairies get off a Vincent at Pat Bay. Without transition, they and the fisherman-uncle who meets them are shown proceeding along a float-string to a fishboat which then chugs under Johnson Street Bridge toward uncle's abode. This appears to be, first, on a Gulf Island, and then, by a shift that escapes my understanding, at Long Beach.

Presently, darn if a bobcat isn't raiding uncle's chicken-run, despite the fact that we have no bobcats this side of the mainland.

Toss in a shot of Indians dipping salmon from a thundering Long Beach canyon, and this sure ain't the Island I've lived on these many years.

No slur on the clever young actors—but this mishmash of nature-faking and scrambled geography needs explaining. Surely, when we have so much to offer the filmmakers, such tampering with fact isn't necessary!

MODERN MICHELANGELOS at work on ceiling of Empress Hotel's Elizabethan Room don't work on their backs but share something of the master's frustrations. Brought here from Vancouver from a firm skilled in Old World methods, the two artists spent 20 days on the job using three blues, two golds, red, white and cream to create a Persian style which reflects the carpeting. The new lounge will seat 35 persons in a "club atmosphere". Elizabethan Room was formerly an antique shop, now will function as a second cocktail lounge and will feature re-upholstered antique furniture. Moulded designs in ceiling were always there but lacking color separation, were hardly noticed. (Photo by Halkett.)

'MEMBERS NOT ASKED'

Only Executive Fights Posting

A bid by the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Society to prevent the posting of pollution signs has not been endorsed by the general membership.

Mrs. W. P. Rankin, 1440 Craigflower, a member of the society whose property overlooks the Gorge, made the charge Monday.

"Lloyd Smith (president of the society) and the executive are doing this on their own," she said. "I haven't even heard an anti-sign program discussed at regular meetings."

Mr. Smith, writing on behalf of the society, has asked the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health Board not to post signs between Portage Inlet and the Inner Harbor warning of the dangers of swimming in polluted water.

He launched his plea after metro health chief Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread announced that "No swimming—water polluted" signs would go up this spring.

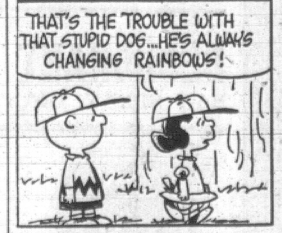

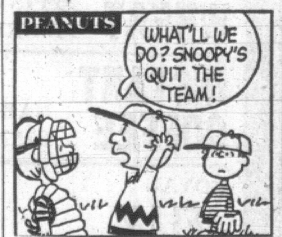

"I don't want those signs posted any more than anyone else," Mrs. Rankin said this morning. "But they have to be posted. We have to keep pushing and pushing to make people aware of the dangers of pollution."

"We can't just sit back and do nothing or, as sure as the Lord made little potatoes we're going to have an epidemic of typhoid."

Overdose Victim In Good Condition

A man was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday by three companions who ran off after saying he was suffering from an overdose of heroin.

Hospital officials report the 34-year-old Port Alberni man, unconscious when he was brought in, is now in good condition.

Holed Ship Going To Burrard

The Japanese freighter Suwaharu Maru will leave Victoria later this week for Burrard Dry Dock in North Vancouver for inspection and survey, King Brothers shipping agents said today.

No decision has been made about the battered Liberian tanker Mandoli II, sheltering in Nootka Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island, but she is expected to come to Esquimalt graving dock.

The two vessels collided Feb. 28 off the Oregon coast. Eleven of the Mandoli's crew of 43 died in the crash and resulting fire.

The 700-foot Mandoli has lost about 500,000 of its 10-million-gallon cargo of oil. The Suwaharu Maru is unloading its cargo of logs at Ogden Point and should leave Thursday night for Burrard Dry Dock.

Smouldering Bookcase Killed Man

Smoke from a smouldering bookcase killed an elderly Esquimalt man found in his living room Sunday.

Coroner Emond Jorre de St. Jorre said today a pathologist's report showed Thomas Pickell died of asphyxiation.

The 71-year-old man had been found by Staff Sgt. Jim Owen of Esquimalt Police late Sunday at 408 Lamson St.

The living room was filled with smoke and Mr. Pickell was found behind a chair, police said.

STROKE VICTIM?
He was known to suffer from emphysema, a lung disease, and it was thought also he might have had a stroke.

His wife, Marie, was notified of the death where she was staying in Los Angeles.

Mr. St. Jorre said there will be a coroner's inquiry to release the body for burial. There will be no inquest.

PLANE MISSING

Copter Defies Bad Weather For Search

Air search officials managed to get one plane aloft today despite bad weather to look for a single-engine plane missing since March 1.

The search master at CFB Comox said late this morning a helicopter was sent to fly over the Qualicum Beach and Cameron Lake area. The crew was to check out sighting reports and interview persons who thought they might have seen the missing plane.

To date, nothing has been found of Port Alberni businessman Jerry Brock, his wife and son, and a family friend. The four disappeared while on a flight from Vernon to the up-Island city.

HEAVY CLOUD

Weather reports for the search area call for heavy cloud cover for at least another day.

Search officials said this morning they are waiting for the slightest break in the weather to get more planes in the air.

They said Monday they would not call off the search until "every possible lead has been exhausted."

B.C.'s Charms To Get Big Play On American TV

More U.S. television shows than ever will publicize British Columbia as a travel mecca, the provincial travel industry department said today.

It listed the program "Hollywood Squares," "Let's Make a Deal," "You Don't Say" and "Dating Game" among the record number which will feature the province at some time or other on 170 stations in the U.S. network.

The department also plans an intensive publicity campaign to help the province cash in on President Johnson's drive to encourage U.S. citizens to holiday on this continent this year.

Travel Industry Minister Kenneth Kieman will lead a tourist promotion group to southern California April 1 to 5, sales pitches will be made directly to about 300 travel agents and joint promotion programs are being arranged overseas with Canadian Pacific Airlines, Air Canada and Western Air Lines.

MOTHERS APPEAL TO MOTHERS FOR HELP TONIGHT

By PETE LOUDON

Twenty scared but desperate low income mothers today appealed to all mothers of the capital district to lend them their strength tonight.

The 20 welfare recipients driven by the plight of their children, say they will walk to the Legislative Buildings at 8 p.m. to begin a continuing sit-in.

"We don't ask them to engage in a sit-in or any civil disobedience with us."

"But if they would just show us their support by walking alongside us, it would mean a great deal," said Low Income Group president, Mrs. Donna Langstaff.

She said the mothers of her group aren't the kind of people who like to demonstrate. In fact most of them prefer anonymity and many are afraid both of being in the limelight and of the government reaction.

"But it's for our kids. And we've tried everything else," she said.

"Any mother, through the loss of a husband or unemployment or illness, could suddenly be in the same boat. How many pay cheques can most families miss before they go on welfare?"

"And how can you get off and be self-supporting if you have a family to care for? If other mothers will consider this, they may want to join us. And if they want to bring their husbands, they're welcome, too."

A main point of the Low Income Group protest is that children under pressures of poverty lose interest in school and often become drop-outs. Thus they have no equality in education and are deprived of civil rights.

The Low Income Group, which will gather at First United Church, Quadra and Balmoral, will proceed down Pandora to Douglas, Broughton and Government, to the legislature.

They plan to enter the Buildings and the legislative galleries to view House proceedings in an orderly manner and remain there until ejected.

If they are blocked in any way they will return again. The sit-in plans cover a four-week period.

Public Works Minister Chant stated earlier that police would be called to break up any sit-in.

The Low Income Group is still hopeful that Premier Bennett might make their protest unnecessary. The following telegram was sent to him Monday by group secretary, Mrs. Pat Hillborn of 1489 Myrtle:

"The present setting and administration of welfare assistance is unjust to deserted children. Our group feels a non-violent display of civil disobedience is needed to expose present unjust situations and strengthen our society by working for equal rights for all citizens."

"If our government has plans to eradicate the present unjust welfare rates for deserted children, could we be advised of this so our serious social action can be postponed?"

Mrs. Langstaff said she has had many calls from people who claim they are "with us in spirit." Tonight she hopes they will join the group in person.

Victory in their crusade, say the mothers, would be government agreement to an independent board to examine present rates for welfare—$200 a month for a mother and four children, for example.

(If the mother gave up her children to foster homes the government would pay $375 monthly for care of the family.)

The welfare recipients already have support pledged by University of Victoria student council and young people's groups from three churches. Earlier, Victoria Council of Churches submitted a brief to Welfare Minister Dan Campbell backing their campaign.

Council chairman Canon G. B. Baker of St. John's said, "If I were as desperate as they are I'd go and sit in the Legislature or anywhere else. They are driven by real need. There's real poverty there."

SIDNEY BRIEFS

Meeting Tuesday On Youth Council

A meeting will be held at St. Paul's Church Hall in Sidney at 7 p.m. next Tuesday to consider forming a Youth Council or Teen Town.

The council composed entirely of youths would be responsible for organizing recreational and sporting activities for the young people of Sidney.

The move is the result of a meeting held in February when Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan spoke on the work and activities of the Duncan youth council.

The town council has delegated Ald. Mrs. Norma Sealey, a member of the recreational committee, to attend next week's meeting.

A public hearing set for March 25 at 7 p.m. in Sidney town hall will consider an application for permission to build an apartment on a large lot situated between 5th and 6th streets.

Applicant S. R. Sharman wants to build a 46-unit apartment.

Mayor A. W. Freeman said other zoning applications will be considered at the meeting.

The 70-piece Marysville High School Tomahawk band will give a band concert in Sidney on Saturday, May 18, Mayor Freeman said.

Weather permitting, it will be an open-air concert.

The school band offered to give a concert in Sidney during its three-day visit to the city for the Victoria Day celebrations.

Youths Admits Siphoning Gas

A 19-year-old pleaded guilty in central court today to siphoning gasoline from parked cars overnight.

Saanich police said they caught William Edwards, HMCS Qu'Appelle, near the Colquitz Bridge at 3 a.m. They said they found a one-gallon gas can and length of hose in his car.

Edwards admitted taking gas from two vehicles in the Colquitz area.

Magistrate Ostler remanded him to March 15 for pre-sentence report.

Committee Gets Word Wednesday

By JIM HUME

Victoria gets the long-awaited official word on the Crystal Garden Wednesday morning—the venerable pool has to go.

The still confidential report to be presented to the Victoria Recreation and Community Services Committee will reveal the Crystal is too old and too tired to be repaired.

Committee members will also be told that even if they agree to a two to three-year phasing out program the cost to the taxpayer will be heavy.

A special committee prepared the report which will say that the cost of keeping the pool operable while a new pool is being built will run over $105,000.

Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the committee studying the Crystal, was reluctant to discuss details prior to the presentation of the report to his full committee.

But he agreed that a two-three year phase out program would be costly.

'DOWN THE DRAIN'

"The $105,000 figure is pretty close," he said. "And that is just for keeping the pool in operation while we get a new pool built. It's a sad thing, but it's going to mean $105,000 down the drain."

Ald. Frampton refused comment on where the money would come from to build a new pool but the committee will be told that there is money available in the McPherson Estate.

Those funds, plus the cash realized from the sale to private capital of the Crystal site, would be more than enough to build a new pool.

Favored site for the new pool remains the Central Park area, a move long advocated to bring the city's major sports and recreation facilities into one complex.

Estimated cost of the new pool has been set at $350,000 although the committee will be informed that fast action could result in savings.

"We have been talking about phasing out the Crystal over two or three years, but I think we are going to have to step that up considerably. As I have already said the $105,000 to keep it going is just money down the drain, money we can't afford to throw away," said Ald. Frampton.

UNDER TWO YEARS

"I'm not prepared to say how long I think it should take to get a new pool up, but we have to do it in far less than two years."

Ald. Frampton added that the $350,000 estimate to build a new pool included construction costs only.

"The figure," he said, "does not include land acquisition." In 1967 a special engineering study of the Crystal resulted in its virtual condemnation as a public building.

At that time the engineers and architects told city council that it would cost $750,000 to bring the Crystal up to modern standards and make it safe.

"But if we did that what would we have?" asked Ald. Frampton. "We would have a new structure because the old roof and walls would have to be replaced, but we would still have an old swimming pool, a pool which some experts think is still sinking."

"I don't like the idea any more than anyone else, but we have to be practical: the Crystal has to come down."

Ask The Times

Q. Is the name Tudor a derivative of the name Theodore and could you please tell me what this name means? A.L.

A. Tudor is a proper name thought by Welsh genealogists to derive from Edfnydd Vychan of Tregarnedd in Anglesey, who was prince of North Wales about 1232. It probably originated from the name Theodore from the Latin Theodorus, meaning "God's gift." The name was given a descendant of Vychan, Owen ap Meredydd—better known as Owen Tudor—who lived with the widow of Henry V of England in 1428, and became the family name.
